Cal. No. 168-60-SR

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a public hearing will be held by the Board of Standards and Appeals Friday,
April 1, 1960 at 10 A.M. in Room 909, at 80 Lafayette Street, Manhattan, on the following proposed adoption of proposed rules for Approval and Use of Portland Blast-Furnace Slag Cements.

PUBLIC HEARING

Authority

Pursuant to the powers vested in the Board by Section 666, Subdivision 2 of the New York City Charter, to adopt rules to carry into effect the provisions of Section C26-312.0(c)2 of the Administrative Building Code, which permits the use of cements of "other types" when approved by the Board and used in accordance with rules of the Board governing their use.

Definitions

- 1.0 Portland blast-furnace slag cement, Type IS and air-entraining portland blast-furnace slag cement, Type IS-A, shall mean those cements meeting the requirements of ASTM Designation: C205 latest revision, for Type IS and Type IS-A cements.
- 1.1 "Approved" for the purposes of these rules shall mean approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals as "cements of other types" for use in New York City pursuant to Section C26-312.0(c)2 of the Administrative Building Code.

Uses

- 2.0 Portland blast-furnace slag cement, Type IS, when approved may be used in New York City wherever the use of portland cement is permitted by the Administrative Code.
- 2.1 Air Entraining portland blast-furnace slag cement, Type IS-A, when approved may be used wherever the use of air entraining portland cement is permitted by the Administrative Code.
  - 2.1.1 Concrete containing air-entraining portland blast-furnace slag cement shall have a minimum air content of 3 percent and a maximum air content of 9 percent.
  - 2.1.2 When plain concrete containing air-entraining portland blast-furnace slag cement is used pursuant to Section C26-311.0 of the Administrative Code, the maximum allowable water cement ratio shall be  $7\frac{1}{2}$  U. S. gallons per sack of cement.
  - 2.1.3 When average concrete containing air-entraining portland blast-furnace slag cement is used pursuant to Section C26-365.0 b-1 of the Administrative Code, the maximum allowable water cement ratio shall be  $6\frac{1}{2}$  U. S. gallons per sack of cement.
  - 2.1.4 When average concrete containing air-entraining portland blast-furnace slag cement is used pursuant to Section C26-365.0 b-2 of the Administrative Code, the maximum allowable water cement ratio shall be 6 U. S. gallons per sack of cement.

The following statement is explanatory only of the reasons presented to the Board for adopting the rules, but in no way is any part of this statement to be considered as contravening any part of the rules adopted.

STATEMENT

Portland blast-furnace slag cement has been produced in the United States since 1938, and is presently manufactured by 8 cement companies (13 different plants). For several years one of these companies, the Green Bag Cement Division, Pittsburgh Coke and Chemical Company, Neville Island, Pa., has been producing portland blast-furnace slag cement exclusively in preference to portland cement.

Portland blast-furnace slag cement is covered by national specifications of the American Society for Testing Materials, the Federal Government, and the American Association of State Highway Officials in the same way as portland cement. These specifications are Tentative Specifications for portland Blast-Furnace Slag Cement, ASTM Designation: C205-58T (First issued as C205-46T in 1946).

Interim Federal Specification, Cements, Portland Blast-Furnace Slag SS-C-00197a.

American Association of State Highway Officials, Standard Specifications for Portland Blast-Furnace Slag Cement, AASHTO Designation: M151-53.

All three of these specifications require that the portland blast-furnace slag cement be an intimately interground mixture of portland cement clinker and granulated blast-furnace slag and that the slag constituent shall not be less than 25 percent and shall not exceed 65 percent of the portland blast-furnace slag cement by weight.

The strength requirements in the specifications for portland blast-furnace slag cements are the same as for portland cements having similar uses. For example, a comparison of ASTM Specifications, C205-58T for portland blast-furnace slag cements with ASTM Specifications C150-56 for portland cements shows that the strength requirements for Type IS are the same as for Type I portland cement.

Portland blast-furnace slag cement is now being included in many ASTM Specifications for concrete and concrete products. These are as follows:

Tentative Specifications for Ready-Mixed Concrete, ASTM Designation: C94.

Tentative Specifications for Packaged, Dry, Combined Materials for mortar and concrete, ASTM: C387.

Tentative Specifications for mortar for Unit Masonry, ASTM Designation: C270.

Standard Specifications for concrete, sewer pipe, ASTM Designation: C14.

Tentative Specifications for Reinforced concrete culvert, storm drain and sewer pipe, ASTM Designation: C76.

Tentative Specifications for reinforced concrete Low-Head Pressure Pipe, ASTM Designation: C361.

Tentative Specifications for Reinforced Concrete Low-Heat Internal Pressure Sewer Pipe, ASTM Designation: C362.

Standard Specifications for Concrete Pipe for Irrigation or Drainage, ASTM Designation: C118.

The following agencies include portland blast-furnace slag cement in their specifications and have used it in various construction projects:

Pennsylvania Department of Highways

Ohio Department of Highways

State of West Virginia

Michigan Highway Department

Illinois State Division of Highways

Indiana State Highway Commission

Wisconsin Highway Department

North Dakota State Highway Department

Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission

West Virginia Turnpike Commission

County of Allegheny, Pa.

City of Pittsburgh, Pa.

City of Milwaukee, Wisc.

Corps of Engineers, Guide Specification of Military Construction, Pavement, Concrete

Corps of Engineers, Pittsburgh District, Civil Works

The Division of Physical Research, Bureau of Public Roads, has conducted extensive tests using 5 portland blast-furnace slag cements from five (5) different plants in comparison with Type I, portland cement produced at each plant. The results of these tests are given in the paper entitled, "Tests of Concrete Containing Portland Blast-Furnace Slag Cement," beginning on page 227 of the October, 1957 issue of "Public Roads."

Additional tests have been made by the Concrete Division, Waterways Experiment Station, Corps of Engineers, Jackson, Miss., in which 6 portland blast-furnace slag cements, Type IS, and 1 air-entraining portland blast-furnace slag cement, Type IS-A, were used in comparison with Type II portland cement. The results of these tests are included in the paper entitled, "Laboratory Tests of Portland Blast-Furnace Slag Cements," which appeared in the September, 1957 issue of the JOURNAL OF THE AMERICAN CONCRETE INSTITUTE, No. 3, Volume 29.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Cal. No. 168-60-SR

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a public hearing will be held by the Board of Standards and Appeals Friday, April 1, 1960 at 10 A.M. in Room 909, at 80 Lafayette Street, Manhattan, on the following proposed adoption of proposed rules for Approval and Use of Portland Blast-Furnace Slag Cements.

Authority

Pursuant to the powers vested in the Board by Section 666, Subdivision 2 of the New York City Charter, to adopt rules to carry into effect the provisions of Section C26-312.0(c)2 of the Administrative Building Code, which permits the use of cements of "other types" when approved by the Board and used in accordance with rules of the Board governing their use.

Definitions

1.0 Portland blast-furnace slag cement, Type IS and air-entraining portland blast-furnace slag cement. Type

IS-A, shall mean those cements meeting the requirements of ASTM Designation: C205 latest revision, for Type IS and Type IS-A cements.

1.1 "Approved" for the purposes of these rules shall mean approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals as "cements of other types" for use in New York City pursuant to Section C26-312.0(c)2 of the Administrative Building Code.

Uses

2.0 Portland blast-furnace slag cement, Type IS, when approved may be used in New York City wherever the use of portland cement is permitted by the Administrative Code.

2.1 Air Entraining portland blast-furnace slag cement, Type IS-A, when approved may be used wherever the use of air entraining portland cement is permitted by the Administrative Code.

2.1.1 Concrete containing air-entraining portland blast-furnace slag cement shall have a minimum air content of 3 percent and a maximum air content of 9 percent.

2.1.2 When plain concrete containing air-entraining portland blast-furnace slag cement is used pursuant to Section C26-311.0 of the Administrative Code, the maximum allowable water cement ratio shall be  $7\frac{1}{2}$  U. S. gallons per sack of cement.

2.1.3 When average concrete containing air-entraining portland blast-furnace slag cement is used pursuant to Section C26-365.0 b-1 of the Administrative Code, the maximum allowable water cement ratio shall be  $6\frac{1}{2}$  U. S. gallons per sack of cement.

2.1.4 When average concrete containing air-entraining portland blast-furnace slag cement is used pursuant to Section C26-365.0 b-2 of the Administrative Code, the maximum allowable water cement ratio shall be 6 U. S. gallons per sack of cement.

The following statement is explanatory only of the reasons presented to the Board for adopting the rules, but in no way is any part of this statement to be considered as contravening any part of the rules adopted.

STATEMENT

Portland blast-furnace slag cement has been produced in the United States since 1938, and is presently manufactured by 8 cement companies (13 different plants). For several years one of these companies, the Green Bag Cement Division, Pittsburgh Coke and Chemical Company, Neville Island, Pa., has been producing portland blast-furnace slag cement exclusively in preference to portland cement.

Portland blast-furnace slag cement is covered by national specifications of the American Society for Testing Materials, the Federal Government, and the American Association of State Highway Officials in the same way as portland cement. These specifications are Tentative Specifications for portland Blast-Furnace Slag Cement, ASTM Designation: C205-58T (First issued as C205-46T in 1946).

Interim Federal Specification, Cements, Portland Blast-Furnace Slag SS-C-00197a.

American Association of State Highway Officials, Standard Specifications for Portland Blast-Furnace Slag Cement, AASHTO Designation: M151-53.

All three of these specifications require that the portland blast-furnace slag cement be an intimately interground mixture of portland cement clinker and granulated blast-furnace slag and that the slag constituent shall not be less than 25 percent and shall not exceed 65 percent of the portland blast-furnace slag cement by weight.

The strength requirements in the specifications for portland blast-furnace slag cements are the same as for portland cements having similar uses. For example, a comparison of ASTM Specifications, C205-58T for portland blast-furnace slag cements with ASTM Specifications C150-56 for portland cements shows that the strength requirements for Type IS are the same as for Type I portland cement.

Portland blast-furnace slag cement is now being included in many ASTM Specifications for concrete and concrete products. These are as follows:

Tentative Specifications for Ready-Mixed Concrete, ASTM Designation: C94.

Tentative Specifications for Packaged, Dry, Combined Materials for mortar and concrete, ASTM: C387.

Tentative Specifications for mortar for Unit Masonry, ASTM Designation: C270.

Standard Specifications for concrete, sewer pipe, ASTM Designation: C14.

Tentative Specifications for Reinforced concrete culvert, storm drain and sewer pipe, ASTM Designation: C76.

Tentative Specifications for reinforced concrete Low-Head Pressure Pipe, ASTM Designation: C361.

Tentative Specifications for Reinforced Concrete Low-Heat Internal Pressure Sewer Pipe, ASTM Designation: C362.

Standard Specifications for Concrete Pipe Irrigation or Drainage, ASTM Designation: C118.

The following agencies include portland blast-furnace slag cement in their specifications and have used it in various construction projects:

Pennsylvania Department of Highways
Ohio Department of Highways
State of West Virginia

Michigan Highway Department
Illinois State Division of Highways
Indiana State Highway Commission
Wisconsin Highway Department
North Dakota State Highway Department
Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission
West Virginia Turnpike Commission
County of Allegheny, Pa.
City of Pittsburgh, Pa.
City of Milwaukee, Wisc.
Corps of Engineers, Guide Specification of Military Construction, Pavement, Concrete
Corps of Engineers, Pittsburgh District Civil Works

The Division of Physical Research, Bureau of Public Roads, has conducted extensive tests using 5 portland blast-furnace slag cements from five (5) different plants in comparison with Type I, portland cement produced at each plant. The results of these tests are given in the paper entitled, "Tests of Concrete Containing Portland Blast-Furnace Slag Cement," beginning on page 227 of the October, 1957 issue of "Public Roads."

Additional tests have been made by the Concrete Division, Waterways Experiment Station, Corps of Engineers, Jackson, Miss., in which 6 portland blast-furnace slag cements, Type IS, and 1 air-entraining portland blast-furnace slag cement, Type IS-A, were used in comparison with Type II portland cement. The results of these tests are included in the paper entitled, "Laboratory Tests of Portland Blast-Furnace Slag Cements," which appeared in the September, 1957 issue of the JOURNAL OF THE AMERICAN CONCRETE INSTITUTE, No. 3, Volume 29.

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: 392-55-SM—Weatherguard Products Corp., filed May 9, 1955 for approval of Fabroid, Model Regular and H.D., (flashing material) under the provisions of C26-178.0.b and C26-191.0 Administrative Building Code.

USE: Waterproof membrane material for built-in flashing, spandrel beam waterproofing and vapor barrier.

DESCRIPTION: The Fabroid, Model Regular and H.D. is a non-reinforced, homogeneous, waterproof and impermeable product, composed of elastomeric materials, which have been reduced to a thermoplastic state, extruded under heavy pressure to provide a continuous homogeneous solid sheeting weighing 11 ozs. per sq. yd., 22 ozs. per sq. yd., and 44 oz. per sq. yd.

Waterproof in itself, Fabroid is extruded under heavy pressure with a grain-like effect to assure a perfect bond between the surface and the bonding material, formulated to be resistant to mildew, saltwater, concentrated solution of sulphuric, hydrochloric, nitric and many other types of acids. Where a bonding agent is specified as asphalt— asphalt asbestos mastic is recommended.

Fabroid is also resistant to attack by the laitance found in Portland cements. Flexible at temperature extremes, Fabroid is resistant to water penetration as tested for one full hour under 40 psi hydrostatic pressure which is equivalent to a 92 ft. hydrostatic head.

crazing, cracking, or chalking and remained flexible at — 20°F.

Flexibility at — 20° F.—Does not crack or break when bent flat through 180°, followed by three subsequent bends of 360° in alternate directions.

Puncture Test ASTM D-781-44T—682.5 puncture units.

This test is performed on a General Electric Puncture Tester and is a measure of the energy required to force a puncture head of designed size and shape completely through a sample. The specimen to be tested is held between two clamping plates, and a pendulum incorporating an arm in the form of an arc of 90 degrees is released by a trigger action from a horizontal position. A puncture point affixed to the end of the rod and having a shape of a right angle triangular pyramic 1 inch in height punctures the specimen. A reading, in inch-ounces per inch of tear, is made on a scale after the pendulum has completed its swing.

The test measures the stiffness and tearing resistance of the specimen.

May 28, 1959 under Lab. No. 54727.

Mullen Bursting Strength—175 lbs.

The sample was tested with a Model "A" 1000 lbs. capacity Mullen Burst tester. In the Mullen Test a sample of the sheeting is clamped between two concentric annular discs and in contact at the lower surface, with a rubber membrane. In the operation of the test, hydraulic pressure on the rubber membrane expands it like a ball into the opening of the upper annular disc and it exerts pressure on the test specimen until it bursts or stretches to the maximum displacement of the instrument without breaking. The area subject to the bursting test is 1.13 sq. inch.

This sample stretched to the limit of the instrument without bursting.

Additional tests were made at A. W. Dow, Inc., on November 10, 1959 under Lab. No. 5502 Thermoplastic material embossed "Fabroid".

Dimensional Stability Test:

A sheet of "Fabroid" was placed between two steel plates and a load of 125 lbs. per sq. inch was applied and maintained continuously throughout the period of the test except for a brief time needed to examine the sheet at the end of the time period noted below:

The thickness at the start of the test was 0.022 inches: the sheet was 4 inches square.

After 7 days—125 psi—no change in length, width, or thickness

After 14 days—125 psi—no change in length, width, or thickness

After 21 days—125 psi—no change in length, width, or thickness

After 30 days—125 psi—no change in length, width, or thickness

At the end of the 30 day test there was no change in the crinkle finish of the sheet of "Fabroid".

Samples of the material were examined at the Board by Asst. Architect T. W. Farricker.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of Fabroid, Model Regular H.D. (flashing material) for voluntary use in New York City, when manufactured and installed in accordance with this report, provided each bundle or roll be labeled or tagged "approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Calendar Number 392-55-SM".

APPLICANT—Cincinnati Cleaning & Finishing Machinery Co., owner—gas-fired paint bake oven.

APPEARANCES—

For Applicant: Joseph Upton, Jr.

ACTION OF BOARD—Appliance approved in accordance with the report and recommendation of Committee on Test.

THE VOTE—

Affirmative: Chairman Foley, Vice Chairman Kleinert, Commissioner Sleeper, Commissioner Fox and Commissioner Becker ..... 5

Negative: ..... 0

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: 661-58-SA—Cincinnati Cleaning and Finishing Machinery Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, filed November 18, 1958 an application with the Board of Standards and Appeals for approval of the Cincinnati Gas Fired Paint Bake Oven for use in New York City under the provisions of the Paint Spray Rules of the Board and C26-191.0 Administrative Building Code.

USE: A recirculating conveyor type of paint baking oven.

DESCRIPTION: The Cincinnati paint bake oven basically consists of insulated tongue and groove standard panels made of inner and outer steel sheets held together by perforated steel channels. The insulation is four pound density mineral wool in the form of batts and well supported to prevent settling. The panels are mounted in structural steel frame to form the oven and attached combustion chamber. Heat is supplied by means of an Eclipse Burner designed to burn natural gas at 6 oz. pressure. Burner size varies with the size of the oven. Ignition is by continuous electric spark and a flame rod is installed to electrically shut off gas flow in case of flame failure. In addition a gas valve is provided to shut off gas flow if gas pressure should fall below the equivalent of 2 inches of water.

The fan starters are electrically interlocked with the gas burning system. One fan is installed in the bottom of the combustion chamber and forces heated air to the bottom of the oven through a duct system. The second fan is installed near the top of the oven and serves to draw off the oven's atmosphere through a duct system placed at the top of the oven interior. This fan discharges to outdoors.

Fan capacities are so proportioned to oven volume that the vapor concentration in the oven atmosphere will be less than ¼ of the low limit of explosibility for the solvent used; on the average at least 10,000 cubic feet of fresh air for each gallon of combustible solvent evaporated.

In operation, the electrical interlocks on the motor starters will prevent any part of the burner system from being energized until the starters are closed. The fans, since they are equipped with air flow switches, must be in operation before the burner system will function.

After the fans are started and the air flow switches close, the gas is turned on, the low gas pressure switch closes and the purge timer is energized. The burner system cannot be energized until the purge time expires, approximately 8 minutes.

After the preset purge time expires the ignition button is pressed which opens the pilot solenoid valve and at the same time operates the spark ignition system which ignites the pilot. As the pilot is ignited its flame contacts the flame rod and causes an electric current to flow to the manual reset safety solenoid valve. This valve then opens allowing gas to flow to the main burner where it is ignited by the pilot flame.

If the burner and pilot burner is extinguished or the operating temperature of the oven exceeds the high limit switch set 375° max. or the temperature in the combustion chamber exceeds the combustion limit switch setting, 725°F or either fan stops or the gas pressure falls below the proper pressure, the safety valve will close and cannot be opened until the condition is corrected.

INSPECTION AND TEST: A typical oven designed for use with a conveyor system was inspected by Ass't Engr.

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: 198-59-SA—John Sexton & Co., for Stero Chemical Mfg. Co., San Francisco, California, filed March 30, 1959 for approval of the Sexton Rinse Injector Model CZ under the provisions of the Submerged Inlet Rules of the Board.

USE: To inject a drying agent into the final rinse water of a dishwashing machine to aid in the air drying of the dishes.

DESCRIPTION: This device consists of a replaceable canister charged with rinse liquid and an aerosol agent. It is connected in an inverted position to the top of metering section which in turn is connected by piping after the vacuum breaker and check valve to a dishwashing machine. The liquid drying agent is known as Puroic L-62 and is made by Wyandotte Chemical Co. It has been listed with the Department of Health.

The liquid drying agent flows, under pressure, through an outlet opening to the piping to mix with the hot rinse water which is fed to spray pipes in the dish washing machine. Its quantity is regulated by means of a needle valve.

INSPECTION AND TEST: All details were examined by Ass't. Engr. G. F. Sklenarik.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee recommends the approval of the device made by the Stero Chemical Mfg. Co., to be marketed by John Sexton & Co. as the Sexton Rinse Injector Model CZ for voluntary use in New York City on dishwashing machines installed with approved vacuum breaker and check valve in accordance with the Submerged Inlet Rules of the Board, on condition that each device bears a label, permanently affixed, reading "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Calendar Number 198-59-SA".

ACTION OF BOARD—Appliance approved in accordance with the report and recommendation of Committee on Test.

THE VOTE—

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: 234-59-SA—Triangle Equipment Co., Nutley, New Jersey, filed April 15, 1959 for approval of Triangle Infra Red Ovens for use in New York City under the provisions of the Paint Spray Rules of the Board.

USE: For drying flammable or combustible coating materials.

DESCRIPTION: An infra red lamp type oven made in a tunnel form, supported on steel legs and with a chain link belt conveyor passing through. It is used to dry flammable coatings applied to the material in process. The infra red lamps are installed in a bank extending the length of the oven over the conveyor belt and with sufficient clearance provided for passage of the processed material. The entire oven body is assembled on an angle iron frame.

Temperature within the oven is automatically controlled and an interlock is provided to shut off electrical energy to lamps when the conveyor stops. Mechanical exhaust is provided for the oven.

INSPECTION AND TEST: A typical installation was inspected at 28-20 Borden Avenue, Long Island City, where two ovens 9 feet and 18 feet in length were being used to dry a sprayed on adhesive applied to steel sheets. The adhesive contained 78% of methyl ethyl ketone as solvent. Maximum application per spray booth averaged 6 gallons of adhesive per hour. Because of the comparatively large quantity of solvent involved a preliminary drying hood, 9 feet in length was installed ahead of each infra red drying oven. These hoods were provided with mechanical exhaust to outdoors of 4000 cfm capacity and perhaps 50% of the solvent is evaporated before the coated material enter the drying oven. Conveyor speed was set at 9 feet per minute oven air temperature at 160°F maximum.

Methyl Ethyl Ketone has a flashpoint of 30°F, boiling point of 176°F, an explosive range of 1.81 to 11.5 specific gravity of .805 and vapor density of 2.41.

The cubic feet of ventilation air per hour required to just attain the low explosive limit of methyl ethyl ketone with air is:

$$6 \times .78 \times \left[ \frac{100 - 1.81 \times \left[ \frac{8.33 \times .805}{.075 \times 2.41} \right]}{1.81} \right] \times \frac{620}{530} = 11775 \text{ cu. ft.}$$

To maintain  $\frac{1}{4}$  of the low limit

$$4 \times 11775 = 47,100 \text{ cu. ft./hr.}$$

Oven fan exhaust capacity 920 cfm or

$$920 \times 60 = 55,200 \text{ cu. ft./hr.}$$

The ventilation in the oven is therefore more than adequate as no allowance has been made for preliminary drying.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee recommends the approval of the Triangle Infra Red Ovens for use in New York City when installed as described in this report and the requirements of the Spray and Dipping Rules of the Board and provided that each oven shall bear a label, permanently affixed, reading "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Calendar Number

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: 740-59-SA—General Electric Co., Major Appliance Division, New York, N.Y., filed November 12, 1959 for approval of Combination Washer-Dryer, Models WD-860T, WD-861T, WD-560T and WD-561T, for use in New York City under the provisions of C26-178.0 and C26-191.0 Administrative Building Code and the Submerged Inlet Rules of the Board.

USE: Domestic type combination clothes washing and drying machine.

DESCRIPTION: These washer-dryers are a domestic type appliance having a load capacity of 8 lbs.

The Models WD-860T and WD-861T are a free standing washer-dryer. The sides, back splash and back of the cabinet are .036 inch gauge shut steel bonderized and finished in baked enamel. The front, top cover and door are .036 inch gauge enameling steel finished in porcelain enamel, the door having a glass observation window. The door latch maintains a water tight seal and releases with a light hand pressure. On the bottom of the appliance are four adjustable feet for leveling. The drum is .041 inch gauge enameling steel, perforated, is 26 inch in diameter with a depth of 16 inch and has six baffles, also an access panel to permit interior of tub to be examined and cleaned and is finished in porcelain enamel. The tub is .041 inch gauge with same finish as drum. The insulation around the tub is a 1 inch fibre-glas blanket. In the calrod unit area there is a piece of aluminum foil approximately 16 inches by 18 inches between the tub and the fibre-glas insulation. A recess drive having 3 belts, and 2 pulleys and a torque motor is used. The power supply is a GE  $\frac{1}{3}$  H.P., 1725 RPM, 115 volts, single phase 60 cycle motor. The pump is also driven by this motor thru a direct drive.

The wash cycle consists of a ten minute tumble cycle and four  $1\frac{1}{2}$  minute rinse cycles. A rubber button trap and a strainer is located in the sump of the tub to prevent buttons, nails, etc., from entering the pump or drain.

The drying cycle is accomplished by means of a calrod heater. Moisture and lint are carried off and down the drain by means of a cold water condensing system. Temperature during the drying cycle is controlled by a tube and bellows type thermostat. A separate disc type safety thermostat is included in the heating circuit to further safeguard against any possible over-heating. Input wattage during the drying cycle is 4500 watts.

On the water inlet there is a  $1\frac{1}{2}$  inch air break in the main water inlet which serves both to fill the tub and to provide cold water for the condensing system on the drying cycle.

The waste water outlet is designed to accept a standard air break fitting where this is required by code.

A complete wash and dry cycle requires approximately 90 gallons of water and current consumption is approximately 5 kilowatt hours.

The Model WD-560T is the same as Model WD-860T and the WD-561T is the same as the WD-861T described above except that WD-560T & WD-561T are designed without the top to permit mounting under a standard counter top.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The details of construction were examined by Ass't Architect T. W. Farricker. The appliance was tested and approved by Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of Combination Washer-Dryer, Models WD-860T, WD-861T, WD-560T and WD-561T for use in New York City under the provisions of C26-178.0 and C26-191.0 Administrative Building Code and the Submerged Inlet Rules of the Board, provided each washer-dryer shall bear a label, permanently affixed, reading "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Calendar Number 740-59-SA".

APPEALS AS TO MULTIPLE DWELLINGS

The Legislature, under Chapter 333 of 1948, has clarified Section 60 of the Multiple Dwelling Law by describing the agency authorized to grant variances under this Section, so as clearly to mean in New York City—the Board of Standards and Appeals.

Chapter 508 of 1948 has also been adopted by the Legislature, amending the Multiple Dwelling Law to provide, under new Section 310, for a Board of Appeals. By description the Board of Appeals means in New York City—the Board of Standards and Appeals. Section 310 is further amended by Chapter 805 of 1959 and provides as follows as to appeals:

LAWS OF NEW YORK—By Authority Chapter 508 of 1948

§ 310. Board of appeals. 1. As used in this section "board" shall mean the agency of a city constituted as a board and authorized by law both to grant variances of the zoning resolution and to make rules supplemental to laws regulating construction, maintenance, use and area of buildings.

2. Where the compliance with the strict letter of this chapter causes any practical difficulties or any unnecessary hardships the board shall have the power, on satisfactory proof at a public hearing, provided the spirit and intent of this chapter are maintained and public health, safety and welfare preserved, and substantial justice done, to vary or modify any provision or requirement of this chapter, or any rule, regulation, supplementary regulation, ruling or order of the department with respect to the provisions of this chapter, as follows:

a. For multiple dwellings and buildings existing on July first, nineteen hundred forty-eight, provisions relating to:

- (1) Height and bulk;
- (2) Required open spaces;
- (3) Minimum dimensions of yards or courts;
- (4) Means of egress; or
- (5) Basements and cellars in dwellings erected on or after April twelfth, nineteen hundred one.

b. For multiple dwellings and buildings erected or to be erected after July first, nineteen hundred forty-eight, and such dwellings thereafter altered or to be altered, provisions relating to:

- (1) Required open spaces; or
- (2) Minimum dimensions of yards or courts.

Variations or modifications may be granted pursuant to this paragraph b only on condition that open areas for light and air are provided which are at least equivalent in area to those required by the applicable provisions of this chapter.

3. An application for such a variance or modification may be made by any person aggrieved or by the head of any public agency, within such time and under such procedure, conditions and rules as may be prescribed by the board. The board shall fix a reasonable time for the hearing of an application and shall require that due notice be given of the time and place of such hearing to the applicant and to the department. Any person or a duly authorized representative of any public agency may appear at any such hearing and be heard on any such application.

4. In every case the board shall state the reason or reasons for its decision. All decisions of the board shall be subject to review in the same manner as is provided by law for review of decisions of such board respecting variances of the zoning resolution.

5. A record of all decisions of the board, indexed according to the section or sections of this chapter affected thereby, shall be kept in the office of the board. Such record shall be open to public inspection at all times during business hours.

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:

56-36-SA—York-Shipley Inc., York, Pennsylvania, requested that the resolution adopted May 5, 1936 under Calendar

MINUTES

Number 56-36-SA and amended June 16, 1936 and November 24, 1936, be amended to include the new Model York Horizontal Rotary Oil Burner, sizes A-18, A-45, A-60, B-100, B-125, C-175, C-225, D-300 and D-400. The resolution was reopened by a vote of the Board, November 14, 1956.

DESCRIPTION: The new burners have been approved by Underwriters' Laboratories under file MP 956. They are manufactured in various types but the basic operating features are the same as in the previously approved burners.

A flame former has been installed inside the front fan shell of these burners which allows rotation of the inner air stream as it emerges from the burner and allows the flame to be shaped to the fire box.

The previously approved burners fed the fuel oil through a hollow burner shaft, now an additional fuel tube has been inserted concentrically in the hollow shaft and the oil passes through the fuel tube rather than through the shaft. The fuel tube is stationary and this design eliminates the need for a rotating shaft seal.

The burners use  $\frac{1}{2}$  HP to 5 HP motors, either direct drive or belt drive. The latter is indicated by the letters BD following burner type designation which is:

Burner Type

- AP — Automatic burner with pump
- AHP — Automatic burner with pump + electric heater
- APM — Automatic burner with pump + modulation
- AHPM — Automatic burner with pump + electric heater and modulation
- AG —
- AHG —
- AGM — As above but without pump
- AHGM —

Electric heaters when used will be approved Wells or Thermolink mounted in a heater well or in a viscosity compensator.

The viscosity compensator is a means of regulating the oil flow to the burner and is part of the electric heater case on #6 oil. On #5 oil the heater case is eliminated. The viscosity compensator includes a relief valve, oil control valves and return line to tank. It has been approved by Underwriters' Laboratories.

Electric heater sizes vary from 1 KW for the smallest size burner to 5 KW for the largest.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee recommends that the resolution adopted May 5, 1936 under Calendar Number 56-36-SA and amended June 16, 1936 and Nov. 24, 1936 be amended to include the new Model York Horizontal Rotary Oil Burner, sizes A-18, A-45, A-60, B-100, B-125, C-175, C-225, D-300 and D-400, on condition that the requirements of the resolution adopted May 5, 1936 under Calendar Number 56-36-SA and as amended June 16, 1936, and November 24, 1936 be complied with.

USE: A hanger to support a suspended ceiling.

DESCRIPTION: The Shurebond hanger is made of a single piece of No. 7 gauge soft annealed galvanized steel wire classed as ASTM 1010 and shaped into an open ended "U" loop. The open end of the hanger is formed into a double hook.

In use the hook end is inserted through a drawn metal cap which is used with each hanger. This cap plate serves to protect the looped end of the hanger from the poured concrete.

The cap plate is nailed to the form, and the hook end of the hanger is inserted through openings in the cap. When the concrete is poured and set, the looped end of the hanger, which is bent to be flush with the cap, is then pried away from the cap, starting first with a chisel and then lightly hammering the loop into a vertical position.

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: 489-56-SA—Wertsville Industries, Inc., New York, for R. Billhoefer Maschinenfabrik, Nuremberg, West Germany, filed June 26, 1956 for approval of the Gula-Infrarapid Varnishing Machine, Model BGTS-5 under the provisions of the Spray and Dipping Rules of the Board.

USE: To dry varnish coated paper.

DESCRIPTION: The Gula-Infrarapid Varnishing Machine consists of a roller coating machine that applies a coating of varnish to sheets of paper, and then by conveyor carries the coated paper through an electrically heated drying chamber of an enclosed type which is equipped with an exhaust hood.

Heat is supplied by electric infra red heaters embedded in ceramic and installed above the conveyor belt. Maximum air temperature is 140°F. Exhaust is conducted outdoors. The conveyor and heating elements are interlocked so that the lamps will be de-energized, if the conveyor stops.

INSPECTION AND TEST: A typical installation was inspected at the Bove Finishing Co., 601 West 26th Street, New York City, by H. A. Tuthill, consulting chemist, of New York City.

The solvent used in the varnish coating was determined to be a mixture of ethyl and isopropyl alcohols comprising 55% of the varnish. The varnish was applied by a roller coating process to sheets of paper board 50" wide by 42" long and then dried in the heated oven. The exhaust from the oven was determined by measurement to be 750 cfm. The rate of evaporation of the alcohol solvents was such that the vapor concentration was far below the limiting standard of 1/4 of the low explosive limit.

The complete report is on file with and is part of the record.

RECOMMENDATION: On the basis of the data submitted, the Committee recommends the approval of the Gula-

Infrarapid Varnishing Machine, Model BGTS-5 for use in New York City when installed and operated in accordance with this report, the requirements of the Fire Commissioner, and the Electrical Code of the City of New York, provided that each drying oven shall bear a label, permanently affixed, reading "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Calendar Number 489-56-SA".

APPEARANCES—

For Applicant: James F. Rolfe.

ACTION OF BOARD—Appliance approved in accordance with the report and recommendation of Committee on Test.

THE VOTE—

Affirmative: Vice Chairman Kleinert, Commissioner Sleeper, Commissioner Fox and Commissioner Becker 4

Negative: ..... 0

Absent: Chairman Foley ..... 1

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: 606-59-SA—Layne & Bowler Pump Co., New York, N. Y., filed an application for approval of Verti-Line Vertical Transfer Pumps under the provisions of the Oil Burner Rules of the Board and Article 8, Chapter 19, Administrative Code.

USE: "Deepwell" for handling liquid petroleum products.

DESCRIPTION: The Layne & Bowler Verti-Line fuel pumps are used at refueling stations, air fields and petroleum bulk storage terminals. The capacities range from 15 GPM to 1500 GPM at heads from 15 feet to 500 feet. The Verti-Line pumps consist of three elements, the pump head, column assembly and pump bowl assembly.

The pump head consists of a driver which may be a vertical explosion proof motor or horizontal electric motor or steam turbine.

One type of head is either of cast iron or fabricated steel of extra heavy construction. It is designed so that the complete pump bowl assembly may be withdrawn from the tank or sump without disturbing the discharge piping or discharge head connection to the tank. This is accomplished by removing the cap screws under the motor supporting bracket and lifting the pump unit through the discharge head.

The second type head is the conventional cast iron or fabricated steel discharged head both extra heavy. It may be designed with separate base flange with the base flange integrally with the head. With fabricated steel construction the base flange is welded to the discharge head. Neoprene gaskets are used between discharge head and discharge flange and between pump base and tank flange.

A drain port is provided in the packing box opposite the lantern ring for relieving pressure and draining fluid back into the tank. The packing used is specially selected for the liquid to be pumped and is replaceable without removing the packing container or the motor.

The pump column is standard weight steel pipe machined for alignment of column flange or coupling. Shaft enclosing tube is extra heavy with internal threading. Sections are connected by externally threaded lineshaft bearings. The lineshaft is SAE 1018 steel or type 416 stainless. Lineshaft couplings are bored from solid steel.

Pump bowls are of class 30 cast iron machined for centering, registering and alignment of pump bowl bearings and impeller shaft. Pump bowl bearings may be of high leaded bronze or non-metallic material. Impellers are enclosed type SAE 40 or SAE 63 bronze and are statically balanced. The impellers are secured to the shaft by means of tapered stainless steel split sleeve bushings. The impeller shaft is of type 303 or 416 stainless steel.

INSPECTION AND TEST: All details were examined by Ass't. Engineer G. F. Sklenarik.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee recommends the approval of the Verti-Line Vertical Transfer Pumps for use in New York City at refueling stations, airports and petroleum bulk storage terminals, in accordance with this report, The Oil Burner Rules of the Board and Article 8, Chapter 19, Administrative Code, provided that each pump shall bear a label, permanently affixed, reading "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New

Negative: ..... 0

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: 897-59-SA—Despatch Oven Company, Minneapolis, Minn., filed an application for approval of the Despatch Electrically Heated Ovens under the provisions of the Spray and Dip Rules of the Board.

USE: For drying flammable or combustible coatings.

DESCRIPTION: These ovens are batch type ovens made of sheet metal panels to form a double walled enclosure insulated with at least 4 inches of rockwool, depending on size and operating temperature. It is designed for installation on a concrete base.

The ovens are equipped with swing doors constructed in a manner similar to the oven walls and which have explosive latches.

The heating equipment consists of low gradient elements of Nichrome wire set in high temperature porcelain insulators. These elements are set on a steel framework and located in an insulated enclosure on top of the oven or behind it.

An American Blower Sirocco fan is used to recirculate air through the oven chamber. A Despatch fan is used to exhaust the oven atmosphere to outdoors.

Controls are Minneapolis-Honeywell and consist of a temperature controller, a limit switch, air flow switches, signal light, fuse blocks and control panel. Interlocks are provided so that the heating elements cannot be energized unless the fans are in operation.

INSPECTION AND TEST: A typical oven of this type was inspected at the Phelps Dodge Company, Yonkers, N. Y., by Ass't Engr. G. F. Sklenarik. This oven is used to cure material impregnated with silicone rubber. It has been successfully used for that purpose for approximately 2 years.

In a typical installation contemplated in New York City, the oven would be sized to take a 20,000 lb. load consisting of armatures, stators or coils impregnated with about 4 gallons of silicone insulating varnish containing 50% naphtha. This would be dried and cured over a period of time but the solvent would be released in the first hours. Exhaust ventilation would be 1960 cubic feet per minute.

The amount of heated air just at the low explosive limit for 2 gallons of naphtha in vapor form would be 6740 cubic feet. For a factor of four it would require an additional 20,220 cubic feet of air. The fan capacity is sufficient to supply more than 26,960 cubic feet of exhaust in 15 minutes.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee recommends the approval of the Despatch Electrically Heated Ovens for use in New York City when installed in accordance with this report and the Spray and Dipping Rules of the Board,

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: 905-59-SA—National Cylinder Gas Division of Chemetron Corporation, North Bergen, New Jersey, filed an application for approval of the NCG Liquid Nitrogen Converter, Model 500, under the provisions of Article 17, Chapter 19, Administrative Code.

USE: To store liquefied nitrogen and to supply the gas under pressure to distribution systems.

DESCRIPTION: The NCG Liquid Nitrogen Converter consists of an insulated storage vessel and a vaporizer.

The storage vessel has a capacity of 4800 gallons and is made of stainless steel in accordance with the ASME code for unfired pressure vessels. It is designed for an operating pressure of 245 psi and is tested to 390 psi. The stainless steel container is within an outer steel shell with the space between shell and storage vessel filled with powdered insulation and kept under vacuum. This outer shell is constructed to comply with the ASME Code for a 15 psi external pressure and is pneumatically tested to 30 psi.

The inner vessel is protected by a primary safety, a 1" x 1" Swendeman Type X50 safety valve set at 240 psi. A secondary safety, a Black, Sivalls & Bryson protected bursting head with a metal foil bursting disc set to rupture at 330 psi is provided. Both safety devices are installed in the control piping cabinet. The outer steel shell is equipped with a safety device built to relieve pressure above atmospheric. The control piping is protected with Bastian-Blessing safety valves set at 350 psi.

The vaporizer is a steel tank which contains copper coils immersed in water which is heated by steam. The flow of steam is automatically controlled to maintain a steady temperature. The vaporized nitrogen is then piped to the point to use.

INSPECTION AND TEST: All details were examined by Ass't. Engineer G. F. Sklenarik.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee recommends the approval of the NCG Liquid Nitrogen Converter, Model 500, for the storage of liquid nitrogen in New York City under the provisions of Article 17, Chapter 19, Administrative Code, on condition that the storage vessel will be installed outdoors where permitted by law and not nearer than 5 feet from adjacent structures if the walls are fire resistive in construction with no openings in the walls within 25 feet of the storage vessel unless such openings lead to rooms used for the storage of nitrogen and/or the charging of cylinders or other suitable containers with nitrogen in which case the distance from storage vessel to wall opening may be 10 feet; that there will be no storage of combustible material in the immediate vicinity of the storage vessel; that all piping from the storage vessel and within the building be as required by the Fire Department; that each installation will be serviced and periodically inspected by specially trained personnel holding certificates of fitness issued by the Fire Department; that all electrical work will be in accordance with the Electrical Code of the City of New York; and further that each storage installation will bear a label, permanently affixed, reading "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Calendar Number 905-59-SA".

*CORRECTION

The minutes of the meeting of the Board of Standards and Appeals held on March 22, 1960 as they appeared in Bulletin No. 13, Vol. 45, hereby corrected to read as follows:

392-55-SM

APPLICANT—Weatherguard Products Corp., owner—Fabroid, Model Regular and H.D.

APPEARANCES—

For Applicant: B. F. White.

ACTION OF BOARD—Material approved in accordance with the report and recommendation of Committee on Test.

THE VOTE—

Not Voting: Vice Chairman Kleinert ..... 1

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: 392-55-SM—Weatherguard Products Corp., filed May 9, 1955 for approval of Fabroid, Model Regular and H.D., (flashing material) under the provisions of C26-178.0.b and C26-191.0 Administrative Building Code.

USE: Waterproof membrane material for built-in flashing, spandrel beam waterproofing and vapor barrier.

DESCRIPTION: The Fabroid, Model Regulator and H.D. is a non-reinforced, homogeneous, waterproof and impermeable product, composed of elastomeric materials, which have been reduced to a thermoplastic state, extruded under heavy pressure to provide a continuous homogeneous solid sheeting weighing 11 ozs. per sq. yd., 22 ozs. per sq. yd.

Waterproof in itself, Fabroid is extruded under heavy pressure with a grain-like effect to assure a perfect bond between the surface and the bonding material, formulated to be resistant to mildew, saltwater, concentrated solution of sulphuric, hydrochloric, nitric and many other types of acids. Where a bonding agent is specified as asphalt—asphalt asbestos mastic is recommended.

Fabroid is also resistant to attack by the laitance found in Portland cements. Flexible at temperature extremes, Fabroid is resistant to water penetration as tested for one full hour under 40 psi hydrostatic pressure which is equivalent to a 92 ft. hydrostatic head.

INSPECTION AND TEST: Tests were made at the City Testing & Research Laboratories, Inc., 250 West 54th Street, New York, N. Y., with the following results:

April 20, 1954—Reference Number S-24689A, material—Black Fabroid Specimen Number .020", Marked H.D.

Puncture Test ASTM D-781-44T—682.5 puncture units.

This test is performed on a General Electric Puncture Tester and is a measure of the energy required to force a puncture head of designed size and shape completely through a sample. The specimen to be tested is held between two clamping plates, and a pendulum incorporating an arm in the form of an arc of 90 degrees is released by a trigger action from a horizontal position. A puncture point affixed to the end of the rod and having a shape of a right angle triangular pyramid 1 inch in height punctures the specimen. A reading, in inch-ounces per inch of tear, is made on a scale after the pendulum has completed its swing.

The test measures the stiffness and tearing resistance of the specimen.

May 28, 1959 under Lab. No. 54727.

Mullen Bursting Strength—175 lbs.

The sample was tested with a Model "A" 1000 lbs. capacity Mullen Burst tester. In the Mullen Test a sample of the sheeting is clamped between two concentric annular discs and in contact at the lower surface, with a rubber membrane. In the operation of the test, hydraulic pressure on the rubber membrane expands it like a ball into the opening of the upper annular disc and it exerts pressure on the test specimen until it bursts or stretches to the maximum displacement of the instrument without breaking. The area subject to the bursting test is 1.3 sq. inch.

This sample stretched to the limit of the instrument without bursting.

Additional tests were made at A. W. Dow, Inc., on November 10, 1959 under Lab. No. 5502 Thermoplastic material embossed "Fabroid".

Dimensional Stability Test:

A sheet of "Fabroid" was placed between two steel plates and a load of 125 lbs. per sq. inch was applied and maintained continuously throughout the period of the test except for a brief time needed to examine the sheet at the end of the time period noted below:

The thickness at the start of the test was 0.022 inches: the sheet was 4 inches square.

After 7 days—125 psi—no change in length, width, or thickness

After 14 days—125 psi—no change in length, width, or thickness

After 21 days—125 psi—no change in length, width, or thickness

After 30 days—125 psi—no change in length, width, or thickness

At the end of the 30 day test there was no change in the crinkle finish of the sheet of "Fabroid".

Samples of the material were examined at the Board by Asst. Architect T. W. Farricker.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of Fabroid, Model Regular and H.D. (flashing material) for voluntary use in New York City, when manufactured and installed in accordance with this report, provided each bundle or roll be labeled or tagged "approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Calendar Number 392-55-SM".

Resolved, that the Board of Standards and Appeals does hereby approve this material in accordance with the above report.

*Correction—In the APPLICANT and Recommendation portions the word "and" is added after the word "Regular". In Description portion last line of first paragraph, the words "and 44 ozs. per sq. yds." has been deleted. Under Puncture Test the word "pyramic" now reads "pyramid".

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: 750-38-SA—Vol. II—Amendment of resolution as to additional vacuum breaker.

Crane Company, Chicago, Illinois requested by filing an application that the resolution adopted January 24, 1939 and amended through February 23, 1955 under Calendar Number 750-38-SA, Vol. I, be reopened and amended so as to include the additional vacuum breaker, Model 8H-549. The application was reopened by a vote of the Board January 28, 1958.

USE: A vacuum breaker to prevent back siphonage.

DESCRIPTION: This back flow preventer is of the angle type having a female inlet at the bottom and a female outlet at the side similar to Model 8H-550 and Model C-7830 (approved under Calendar Number 750-38-SA).

The internal floating member is of a molded plastic material (Bakelite), having a thin rubber disc fastened at the bottom, acting as a check valve when the breaker is in the normal position (flow-shut-off). A rubber disc is also fastened to the top of the float to seal off the opening to atmospheres while the water is flowing. This feature is to prevent leakage through the vent cap which may occur at low flow rates. The opening to atmosphere is protected by a canopy.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The vacuum breaker was tested at the Department of Water Supply, Gas & Electricity Test Bench, Brooklyn, New York and during the test the appliance showed no signs of back siphonage. The complete report is on file with and is part of the record.

ACTION OF BOARD—Material approved in accordance with the report and recommendation of Committee on Test.

Negative: ..... 0

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:

904-55-SM—Crane Company, Chicago, Illinois filed October 28, 1955 for approval of the Crane Float Valve for Closet Tank, Model 9-496 under the provisions of the Submerged Inlet Rules of the Board. The application was subject for dismissal June 26, 1959 but was removed from the dismissal list at the request of the applicant.

USE: To control water supply for closet tank.

DESCRIPTION: The valve is a float operated valve known as a ballcock for closet bowls. There is no packing required at the plunger as the diaphragm seals the bonnet from contact with the water supply; this eliminates the use of "O" rings. The refill tube is of rubber in order to prevent leaking joints and leakage at the threads. The seal ring is of nylon.

In operation, when filling, water flows through the opening in the orifice plate and check disc. The pressure of the water depresses the disc thus sealing the air vent holes. In the event of a vacuum, the check disc rises to seal the holes in the orifice plate and allows air to enter through the air vent holes into the back water preventer above the water in the hush and refill tubes thus preventing water being drawn into the supply line.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The valve was tested at the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity Test Bench and successfully met the sustained vacuums of 28", 22½", 15", 7½" and 4½" with no back siphonage. The test report is on file with and is part of the record.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the Crane Float Valve for closet Tank, Model 9-496 for use in New York City to control water supply for closet tanks when installed in accordance with the requirements of the Submerged Inlet Rules of the Board on condition that the valve bear a label permanently affixed reading as follows: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. ACTION OF BOARD—Material approved in accordance with the report and recommendation of Committee on Test.

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:

349-58-SM—Briggs Manufacturing Co., Warren, Michigan, filed for approval of the Briggs One Piece Water Closet, Model 6300, under the provisions of the Submerged Inlet Rules of the Board and Section C26-1277.0 Administrative Building Code.

USE: Vitreous china closet bowl.

DESCRIPTION: The bowl is made of vitreous china and is so designed that it will not overflow for, if bowl stoppage occurs the water rises in the tank to the point where the float valve shuts off the supply. This point is lower than the top of the rim of the bowl and this prevents overflowing.

The mechanism utilizes the # 76 Indiana Brass Company Float Valve to prevent back syphonage. The water passes through the riser of the #76, flows from the seat body to the air vent body forcing the float valve against the vent cap washer in the body cap, which prevents the water from squirting out of the float valve. When it is filling the tank the water passes through the husher tube into the tank until the proper level is reached, causing it to shut off. With the air vent on the #76 float valve vent body cap, pressure is relieved from the float, which allows sufficient air into the lines, so that water in the tank will not be back syphoned through the water lines. This eliminates any pollution of water lines if the water in the tank has been contaminated in any way.

The #76 float valve is an adaptation of the Indiana #93 Float Valve to meet the requirements of the One-Piece Closet. It differs in size and in the incorporation of a connection to the rim instead of the usual refill tube. A diverter valve, which is operated by the tank lever, directs the incoming water to the rim while the rubber tank ball is off its seat, after which most of the flow passes through the husher tube into the tank to fill it. A small quantity of water continues to pass through the rim to supply the water needed to bring the bowl up to seal.

The Indiana Brass Number 93 float valve was approved March 6, 1950 under Calendar Number 648-49-SM.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The closet was tested at the Department of Water Supply, Gas & Electricity Test Bench, Brooklyn, New York, and successfully met the vacuum tests and there was no back syphonage in any of the tests. The complete report is on file with and is part of the record.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the Briggs One Piece Water Closet, Model 6300, when constructed as herein described and in accordance with drawings marked received May 14, 1958 which are on file with and are part of the record, on condition that the installation shall comply with the requirements of the Submerged Inlet Rules of the Board and Section C26-1277.0 Administrative Building Code and further that the appliance bear a label, permanently affixed, reading "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Calendar Number 349-58-SM".

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:

651-58-SA—Uniflow Manufacturing Co., Erie, Pa., filed for approval of their Kold Draft Ice Cube Maker, Model GB3 under the provisions of section C26-191.0 and Article 18, Chapter 19, Administrative Code.

USE: An ice cube making machine.

DESCRIPTION: The Kold Draft Ice Cube Maker is a package unit made up of a hermetic condensing unit and an evaporator specially designed to form solid ice cubes.

The system is charged with 3 pounds of F-12 and employs a sealed compressor motor that develops approximately ½ horsepower. Either air cooled or water cooled condensers are available.

Water for ice making purposes is supplied through a perforated pipe and into an open tray. It circulates to a storage tank and by means of a pump it is sprayed upward through a series of perforated pipes against the evaporator shell. The sprayed water freezes layer upon layer in the ice cube cups in the evaporator until the finished cubes are formed. At this point automatic controls serve to divert hot refrigerant gas through the evaporator, defrosting around the cubes. The cubes fall out and are stored in an insulated bin. Additional water is automatically supplied as required by a float valve.

INSPECTION AND TEST: A typical unit was inspected at 41-41 - 24th Street, Long Island City, by Ass't. Engr. G. F. Sklenarik.

The Kold Draft Ice Cube Maker has been tested and listed by Underwriters' Laboratories, file SA 2713.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of Kold Draft Ice Cube Maker, Model GB3, air cooled and water cooled, for use in New York City when installed in accordance with this report and the provisions of Article 18, Chapter 19, Administrative Code and the Electrical Code of the City of New York, provided that each appliance shall bear a label, permanently affixed, reading "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Calendar Number 651-58-SA".

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:

376-59-SA—Economics Laboratory Inc., filed for approval of the Dri-Vac, Model J-4 under the provisions of the Submerged Inlet Rules of the Board.

USE: An appliance to inject a wetting agent into final rinse of dish-washing machines.

DESCRIPTION: The Dri-Vac consists of two components. The first component is a molded plastic flo-meter and control valve which is attached to a stainless steel housing or cabinet. Attached to the plastic parts is a quik-lock bottle holder to enable the use of the regular 8 oz. RINSE DRY bottle as the reservoir.

The second component is a pitot tube which is inserted into the final rinse line of a dish machine downstream from the rinse valve, and downstream from a syphon breaker when one is installed.

The heart of the Dri-Vac is the small pitot tube. The pitot as inserted in the final rinse water line of the dish machine, measures the flow of water in the pipe. It is uniquely designed to most effectively use the difference in pressure created at the inlet and outlet holes to inject RINSE DRY. The pitot is a measuring device, especially shaped to create a momentary difference in pressure in the water flowing by it. By drawing water from the point of highest pressure and introducing it to the top of the rinse dry bottle, pressure is obtained to cause rinse dry to flow from the bottle out into the rinse line through a tiny hole at the point of lowest pressure.

This difference in pressure becomes greater as the flow of water in the rinse line increases, and conversely, decreases as the water flow decreases. Changes are noted instantaneously. Therefore, the rate of Rinse Dry injection is controlled instantaneously and exactly by the flow of water in the rinse line. The injection rate varies in direct proportion to the changes in water flow.

The injection rate of Rinse Dry is adjusted and controlled by the valve at the top of the flo-meter.

Incoming water is gently diffused into the Rinse Dry bottle and forms a layer of water on top of the Rinse Dry. Since the pitot causes a difference in pressure at the water and Rinse Dry openings of the pitot, water is forced into the Rinse Dry Bottle, pushing the Rinse Dry out through a small strainer and tubing at the bottom of the bottle. Then Rinse Dry is conducted through the flo-meter and back into the rinse line.

The quik-lock bottle holder permits quick and easy exchange of the bottles. The tiny orifice at the top of the bottle allows entrapped air to be purged from the bottle, thereby preventing surging.

INSPECTION AND TEST: Details of construction were examined by Ass't. Engr. J. A. Darts and were compared with Drawings 725-66 which are on file with and are part of the record.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the appliance known as Dri-Vac, Model J-4, for voluntary use in New York City when constructed as herein described. The installation shall be protected by an approved vacuum breaker and check valve as required by the Submerged Inlet Rules of the Board and further the appliance shall bear a label permanently affixed, reading "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Calendar Number 376-59-SA. ## THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:
657-59-SA—Morris Kweller for Neil & Spencer Ltd., Surrey, England, filed an application for approval of the Spencer Dry Cleaning Machine, Models Junior, Sixty and Senior—one or two bath—under the provisions of the Rules of the Board covering Dry Cleaning Establishments.

USE: Dry cleaning machines for use with a non-combustible cleaning solvent.

DESCRIPTION: The Spencer Dry Cleaning Machines are package units designed for use with perchlorethylene or Trichlorethylene solvent. In each unit the washer cage is an open single compartment made of galvanized steel which, during the cleaning cycle, is rotated alternately clockwise and counter-clockwise by means of a two speed reversing motor and suitable controls.

Each unit has a steel storage tank for solvent, a steam heated still, a sludge filter with steam distillation for recovering solvent in the sludge and also a button trap. During the clothes drying cycle solvent vapors, driven off by steam heated air, are condensed in a water cooled condenser and the residual vapors are exhausted to atmosphere by means of a duct.

These cleaning units are automatically timed and operated but automatic operation can be overridden at any moment by manual control. The glass paneled door opening to the washer cage is interlocked electrically so that the machine will not operate if the door is open. The difference between one bath and two bath models is in the timing of operations.

MINUTES

The capacities of the different units as determined by the Board's rule of 2.8 pounds of dry clothes per cubic foot of washer cage capacity is 36 pounds for the Junior Model, 50 pounds for the Sixty Model and 87.5 pounds for the Senior Model.

INSPECTION AND TEST: An installation was inspected at 40-04 74th Street, Queens by Asst. Engr. G. F. Sklenarik. The machine operated satisfactorily as designed.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the Spencer Dry Cleaning Machine, Models Junior, Sixty and Senior—one bath or two bath—for use in New York City in accordance with this report and the Board's Rules Covering Dry Cleaning Establishments and when installed in accordance with the Electrical Code of the City of New York provided that each unit shall bear a label, permanently affixed, reading: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:

107-60-SM—The Marblette Corporation, New York, N. Y., filed an application for approval of Maraweld as a method of repair for 275 gallon fuel oil storage tanks under the Oil Burner Rules of the Board.

USE: A method of repairing 275 gallon fuel oil tanks.

DESCRIPTION: The Maraweld method of tank repair consists of applying a laminate of fibre glass fabric and Maraweld epoxy resin to the bottom of a tank and curing the resin with heat so that a hard, corrosion resistant patch is formed.

The 275 gallon tank to be repaired is first emptied of oil, cleaned, disconnected from the piping and turned upside down. The bottom is then ground with an abrasive wheel to clean metal between the leg brackets and approximately 4 inches up the end heads. This area is degreased by applying a non-combustible solvent such as trichlorethylene. When dry, a coat of Maraweld epoxy resin and catalyst is applied to the cleaned area and spread on with the use of heavy rubber gloves. The resin is then covered with a single piece of 10 ounce fibre glass cloth cut to fit. This is pressed down into the resin and another coat of resin is worked into it. A second layer of fibreglass cloth is then added and a final layer of resin applied. This is then cured by means of electric heat lamps until it sets.

INSPECTION AND TEST: A 275 gallon tank with a 3" x 12" opening cut into its bottom was repaired as described above. The repair successfully withstood a test of 10 psi without leak or deformation.

A heavy container of approximately 15 gallons capacity with a number of holes drilled through the bottom was repaired in the manner described. It was partially filled with water and set on a stand over a wood fire. The water was heated to boiling but no leak developed.

A 3 inch I.D pipe was repaired with a wrap around application of fibre glass and epoxy resin to patch a ½" x 1" opening cut into the pipe. This patch withstood a hydrostatic test of 1000 psi and finally ruptured at approximately 1200 psi.

Tensile tests on steel samples glued together with Maraweld epoxy resin indicated a tensile strength of approximately 5000+psi.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of Maraweld method of tank repair for

The method and practice of the systematic and orderly vacating of a building by its occupants in case of emergency, panic or fire in the least possible time—by the nearest safe means of exit—and the use of fire appliances which shall be provided for the extinguishing or retarding of fire and the safeguarding of human life.

Rule 1.

In all buildings as defined in Article 1, Section 10 of the Labor Law in which fire drills are required pursuant to Section 279 thereof and in any other building in which such drills are required by the Fire Commissioner pursuant to the power conferred in section 491 of the New York City Charter, it shall be the duty of the owners, lessees or tenants to conduct fire drills monthly and at such other times as the Fire Commissioner may direct.

For the purpose of conducting such fire drills the owner or tenants shall appoint from among their employees such responsible and dependable persons, male or female, who shall efficiently perform the duties of the various positions of the fire drill organization, as specified on the accompanying chart.

It shall be the duty of the owner or tenant to enter in the blank spaces provided for that purpose in said chart the names of persons so selected and post said chart and copies of the rules in a conspicuous place.

Rule 2. Duties of Foreman.

The Foreman or Person in Charge shall direct, enforce and have full charge of the "Fire Drill" in every factory on each floor. Each day before work is begun he shall see that extinguishers, fire hose, fire buckets, etc., are in readiness for use, exit doors are unlocked, aisles are free from obstruction, that stairways, halls, etc., are properly lighted, and shall remedy any dangerous condition found to exist. Immediately after work is commenced he shall check up the Fire Drill Organization list and note if the regularly assigned persons are present; if any are found to be absent, he shall assign other employees (if practicable) to perform their duties.

He shall immediately notify new employees of the existence of the Fire Drill Organization and give them the necessary instructions as to the duties they are to perform, etc.

He shall be familiar with the operation and location of the interior alarm signal box on his floor.

He shall listen for the test signal each morning at the appointed hour and in the event of the test signal not being heard he shall communicate with the superintendent or other person in charge of the building and advise him of the fact. The (Floor Captain's) Foreman's orders are final as to the carrying out of the fire drill on his particular floor.

Rule 3. Duties of Watchmen.

The WATCHMEN shall see that all doors and windows are closed so as to prevent the spread of fire. The WATCHMEN shall be the only persons permitted to remain on the floor during the progress of a fire drill and do so at their own risk. For ordinary purposes only one watchman and a substitute shall be designated. In special cases, however, extra watchmen may be assigned by consent in writing from Fire Commissioner.

Rule 4. Duties of Searchers.

The MALE AND FEMALE SEARCHERS shall search all toilets, dressing rooms and emergency rooms used and frequented by their sex and all other portions of the floor and order all persons, except those authorized to remain, to leave the premises. They are to take care of and assist all persons who may faint or be disabled.

SEARCHERS shall leave the floor immediately after the last squad leaves.

Rule 5. Duties of Street Alarm Box Runner.

The STREET-ALARM-BOX-RUNNER shall be familiar with the location of the nearest city fire alarm box and know how it is operated.

In ordinary practice fire drills the STREET-ALARM-BOX-RUNNER shall report to the Foreman for orders, and if his services are not required he shall promptly file out of the premises with the other occupants.

Only when a fire actually occurs on his floor, or when ordered to do so by the Foreman, shall the STREET-ALARM-BOX-RUNNER proceed to the street alarm box and send in the fire alarm.

Rule 6. Duties of Fire Brigade.

The fire brigade shall have full charge of the operation of all auxiliary fire fighting apparatus and shall endeavor to extinguish, or at least hold in check until the arrival of the Fire Department, any fire that may occur. When it is necessary for the fire brigade to respond to different floors in the building they shall not use the stairways or fire escapes while the occupants are escaping from the premises.

Rule 7. Duties of Exit Guards.

The EXIT GUARDS shall station themselves at all exit doors leading to fire escapes, stairways, and other means of escape immediately upon the sounding of the alarm. There shall be two guards for each exit, if practicable; one to stand in the hallway holding back the door and the other directly inside on the floor. They are to keep the exit doors open and direct the movements of the persons using these exits and prevent congestion.

EXIT GUARDS shall remain at their stations until all of the occupants of the building have passed their station. Then close their doors and pass out of the building. Upon signal for the occupants to return, EXIT GUARDS shall take their designated stations and remain there until all persons have returned to their respective floors.

Rule 8. Duties of Squad Monitors.

The SQUAD MONITORS, as soon as the alarm is sounded, shall see that the employees under their charge quickly form into line, two abreast, and numbering not more than thirty to each squad. They shall see that all aisles and passageways are cleared of obstructions.

Note: Chairs, stools, baskets, etc., should be pushed under or placed on top of work benches.

MONITORS shall proceed at the head of their respective squads to the exit assigned, and then march up or down the stairs or to other exits as directed by the EXIT GUARDS.

On reaching the sidewalk MONITORS shall keep their squads in order and lead them a reasonable distance from the building, so as not to cause congestion and interference with fire apparatus. When the proper signal is given they shall return to their respective floors at head of their squads.

MONITORS will at all times see that those under their charge conduct themselves in a respectable and orderly manner.

Rule 9. Holding of Drills.

FIRE DRILLS shall be held at least once each month at varied hours of the day, and all of the occupants shall participate therein simultaneously. Such drills shall conduct all occupants to a place of safety.

Where dual operation interior fire alarm systems are installed as permitted under Rule 10.1 of the interior fire alarm rules of the Board of Standards and Appeals, the fire drill conducted each month shall include all of the persons on the premises engaged at work for a factory, and drills shall be conducted at least twice, each year in which all of the persons on the premises shall participate simultaneously.

Rule 10. Duties of Owner.

It shall be the duty of the OWNER, LESSEE OR TENANT OF THE BUILDING or his authorized agent or their representatives to personally observe that the "Fire Drill" is held simultaneously on every floor of the building and the participation therein of every occupant of such building. Any FIRE DRILL in which all of the occupants do not participate shall not be considered as complying with the LAW, except as otherwise provided in these rules.

The person or persons representing the OWNERS, LESSEE OR TENANT, who supervises the FIRE DRILL at the building shall submit to an examination by the Division of Fire Prevention as to their experience and general fitness for such duties, and shall be so certified in writing by the FIRE COMMISSIONER.

It shall be the duty of the ENGINEER, SUPERINTENDENT or other PERSON IN CHARGE of a building having an interior fire alarm system to test such system daily immediately after the beginning of business, and to see that all apparatus operated by springs, requiring winding are rewound after each alarm and kept in normal condition for operation.

Rule 11. Duties of Engineer.

Whenever it is necessary to test the fire alarm system at any other time of the day, owing to repairs, etc., being made, the PERSON IN CHARGE OF BUILDING will first notify all Foremen of the several floors of the intended test and likewise notify them when the repairs, etc. are completed. This precaution is taken to prevent confusion and excitement, also misunderstanding of the alarm signals.

It shall also be the duty of the PERSON IN CHARGE OF BUILDING to sound the interior alarm system at irregular intervals, but not less than once each calendar month, for the purpose of holding practice fire drills. He shall keep on the premises a record of such drills, showing the date when held and the required time for all occupants to reach the street or a point of safety outside the building.

The PERSON IN CHARGE OF BUILDING must immediately acquaint new tenants of the existence of the "Fire Drill" Organization and its purport.

Rule 12. Registration.

The name and address of every person, corporation or co-partnership, that will, under professional service, carry on the trade, business or calling of establishing, maintaining or supervising the "Fire Drill" shall be registered in the Fire Department, which Department shall, upon evidence of fitness, grant a certificate to that effect.

APPEALS AS TO MULTIPLE DWELLINGS

The Legislature, under Chapter 333 of 1948, has clarified Section 60 of the Multiple Dwelling Law by describing the agency authorized to grant variances under this Section, so as clearly to mean in New York City—the Board of Standards and Appeals.

Chapter 508 of 1948 has also been adopted by the Legislature, amending the Multiple Dwelling Law to provide, under new Section 310, for a Board of Appeals. By description the Board of Appeals means in New York City—the Board of Standards and Appeals. Section 310 is further amended by Chapter 805 of 1959 and provides as follows as to appeals:

LAWS OF NEW YORK—By Authority Chapter 508 of 1948

§ 310. Board of appeals. 1. As used in this section "board" shall mean the agency of a city constituted as a board and authorized by law both to grant variances of the zoning resolution and to make rules supplemental to laws regulating construction, maintenance, use and area of buildings.

2. Where the compliance with the strict letter of this chapter causes any practical difficulties or any unnecessary hardships the board shall have the power, on satisfactory proof at a public hearing, provided the spirit and intent of this chapter are maintained and public health, safety and welfare preserved, and substantial justice done, to vary or modify any provision or requirement of this chapter, or any rule, regulation, supplementary regulation, ruling or order of the department with respect to the provisions of this chapter, as follows:

a. For multiple dwellings and buildings existing on July first, nineteen hundred forty-eight, provisions relating to:

- (1) Height and bulk;
- (2) Required open spaces;
- (3) Minimum dimensions of yards or courts;
- (4) Means of egress; or
- (5) Basements and cellars in dwellings erected on or after April twelfth, nineteen hundred one.

b. For multiple dwellings and buildings erected or to be erected after July first, nineteen hundred forty-eight, and such dwellings thereafter altered or to be altered, provisions relating to:

- (1) Required open spaces; or
- (2) Minimum dimensions of yards or courts.

Variations or modifications may be granted pursuant to this paragraph b only on condition that open areas for light and air are provided which are at least equivalent in area to those required by the applicable provisions of this chapter.

3. An application for such a variance or modification may be made by any person aggrieved or by the head of any public agency, within such time and under such procedure, conditions and rules as may be prescribed by the board. The board shall fix a reasonable time for the hearing of an application and shall require that due notice be given of the time and place of such hearing to the applicant and to the department. Any person or a duly authorized representative of any public agency may appear at any such hearing and be heard on any such application.

4. In every case the board shall state the reason or reasons for its decision. All decisions of the board shall be subject to review in the same manner as is provided by law for review of decisions of such board respecting variances of the zoning resolution.

5. A record of all decisions of the board, indexed according to the section or sections of this chapter affected thereby, shall be kept in the office of the board. Such record shall be open to public inspection at all times during business hours.

The total thickness of the slab is 3" including the formboard. The underside of the bulb tees or ASCE rails (spaced 32 5/8" o.c.) are unprotected.

The formboard is 1" x 24" Gold Bond Acoustifibre Formboard, a perforated acoustical wood fiber material which has a flame resistance of Class C per F.S. SS-A-118b, fabricated from material as previously approved under Calendar Number 538-44-SM.

INSPECTION AND TEST: A fire endurance test was conducted at the National Bureau of Standards, Report No. 406, which is on file and part of the record, on a Poured-in-Place Gypsum Roof Deck slab. The construction included bulb tee rails spaced 32 5/8" o.c. welded on alternate sides to three steel beams, which were placed within the furnace, 1/2" x 32" wide gypsum formboard (previously approved) was placed on the top of the lower flange of the bulb tees; dimpled wire reinforcing mesh, described above, was placed over the formboard and bulb tees and 2 1/2" (measured from top of formboard) Poured-in-Place gypsum concrete was poured over the construction. The beam protection, previously approved, consisted of reinforced gypsum concrete poured solidly around the lower three sides of the beams to a thickness of 2 inches from the edges and bottom of the beam flanges. There was no ceiling below this construction; the bottom flanges of the bulb tees were exposed to the fire.

The construction was tested for fire endurance in accordance with the provisions of ASTM E119 and the Administrative Building Code and failed at 2 hours 18 minutes due to temperature rise of one thermocouple on the unexposed side.

Gold Bond Acoustifibre Formboard was tested for flame resistance in accordance with the provisions of Federal Specification SS-A-118b and met all requirements of Class

"C". The test report is on file and part of the record.

RECOMMENDATION: On the basis of the test reports and data furnished by the applicant, the Committee on Test recommends that the resolution adopted May 12, 1953 and amended at various times through March 31, 1959 be further amended to permit an unprotected gypsum roof deck with not less than 2½" gypsum concrete over an incombustible formboard as providing 2 hours fire resistance for roofs and floors of Class 2 construction, as provided under Section C26-240.0 and previously approved constructions protected with a 3 hour lath and plaster ceiling, as provided under Section 26-575.0, provided 3 hours fire resistance is for floors and/or roofs in Class I and all other classes of construction and further when the formboard is Acoustifibre Formboard (wood fiber) the limitations shall be as follows:

| Class of Construction | Ceiling Area (sq. ft.) |
|-----------------------|------------------------|
| 1                     | 5,000*                 |
| 2                     | 5,000*                 |
| 3                     | 6,000                  |
| 4                     | no limit               |
| 5                     | 6,000                  |
| 6                     | 6,000                  |

*In school buildings where the ceiling is 20 ft. clear above the floor these areas may be increased 50%, provided that all other provisions of the resolution adopted May 12, 1953 and amended at various times through March 31, 1959 under Calendar Number 126-51-SM be complied with.

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:

133-51-SM—Amendment of resolution as to additional fire resistive constructions.

J. K. Hovind for National Gypsum Company, Buffalo, New York requested by letter dated April 15, 1959 that the resolution adopted May 22, 1952 and amended May 18, 1954 under Calendar Number 133-51-SM be further amended to include constructions for steel beam protection having endurance ratings of 2, 3 and 4 hours and a wood stud partition with a fire endurance rating of 1 hour under pertinent sections of the Administrative Building Code. The application was reopened by a vote of the Board May 12, 1959.

USE: The material is a mill-mixed gypsum plaster used for fireproofing.

DESCRIPTION: Gold Bond Gypsolite Plaster (mill-mixed gypsum perlite plaster) previously approved may be used for fireproofing steel beams and as the surfacing material of a wood stud partition; constructions as hereinafter described.

The ¾ inch perforated gypsum lath was attached to the wood studs with Gold Bond Flex Clips which resiliently hold the lath approximately ¼ inch away from the wood framing. The clips are as follows:

Gold Bond FC-1 Field Clip—a galvanized sheet steel clip having protruding fingers which accept the edges or ends of adjacent pieces of lath and resiliently hold the lath approximately ¼ inch from the framing. The clips are attached to the framing with one nail per clip.

Gold Bond FC-2 Starting-Finishing Clip—a galvanized sheet steel clip having a "U" shape at one end to accept the edge of a piece of gypsum lath and an offset nailing leg at the other, which securely fastens the lath to the studs while holding it away approximately ¼ inch.

Gold Bond FC-3 Corner Clip—a galvanized sheet steel clip consisting of two sets of protruding fingers at 90 degrees to each other for resiliently securing abutting pieces of gypsum lath at interior corners.

INSPECTION AND TEST: Three steel beams were tested in accordance with the requirements of ASTM E119 and Section 609.0 Administrative Building Code at Underwriter's Laboratories.

The constructions and fire endurance ratings attained were as follows:

4 Hours Fire Endurance, Steel Beam—1½ inches Gold Bond Gypsolite Plaster (mill-mixed 100 pounds gypsum to 2½ inches cubic feet perlite) applied in two coats, scratch and brown, to 3.4 pounds per square yard. Gold Bond self furring metal lath, previously approved under Calendar Number 342-39-SM, which was wrapped around the lower three sides on the beam, attached to the upper and lower flange edges with gold Bond Beam Furring Clips, previously approved under Calendar Number 53-59-SM, spaced 9 inches on centers. Plaster thickness, measured from face of lath included ¼ inch to ⅝ inch lime-putty finish coat.

3 Hours Fire Endurance, Steel Beam—1¼ inches Gold Bond Gypsolite (mill-mixed 100 pounds, gypsum to 2½ cubic feet perlite) applied to construction identical to 4 hour rated construction described above. Plaster thickness, measured from face of lath included 1/16" to 1/8" lime-putty finish coat.

2 Hours Fire Endurance, Steel Beam—1⅝" Gold Bond Gypsolite (mill-mixed 100 lbs. gypsum to 2½" cu. ft. perlite) applied to two coats, scratch and brown, to ¾ lb. per sq. yd. diamond mesh metal lath, previously approved under Calendar Number 342-39-SM, attached tightly to the upper and lower flange edges with Gold Bond Beam Furring Clips spaced 9 inches on center. The lath was in a "U" shape, tight to the flange edges and extended 1 inch below the face of the lower flange. Plaster thickness, measured from face of lath, included 1/16" to ⅝" lime-putty finish coat.

The partition, constructed of wood studs, gypsum lath and Gypsolite Plaster was tested for fire endurance at Ohio State University and attained a fire resistive rating of 1 hour.

The tested partition included 2" x 4" wood studs 16 inches o.c., ¾" Gold Bond perforated gypsum lath, previously approved under Calendar Number 136-38-SM, attached with Gold Bond FC-1 Flex Clips and accessories, ½" Gold Bond Gypsolite Plaster (mill-mixed 100 lbs. gypsum to not more than 2 cu. ft. perlite) applied in a double back operation. Plaster thickness includes 1/16" lime-putty finish.

The complete reports, Retardant 4197 are on file with and are part of the record.

RECOMMENDATION: On the basis of the inspection and test and the data filed by the applicant, the Committee on Test recommends that the resolution adopted May 22, 1952 and amended May 18, 1954 under Calendar Number 133-51-SM be further amended so as to permit the use of the Gold Bond Gypsolite Plaster as fireproofing in constructions as herein described for protection of structural steel beams for fire resistive ratings as shown when the plaster is applied to a thickness as described and also permit the use of the Gold Bond Flex Clip System for attachment of gypsum lath and gypsum plaster to wood joist ceilings where a fire resistive rating is not required on condition that the requirements of the resolution adopted May 22, 1952 and amended May 18, 1954 under Calendar Number 133-51-SM be complied with and further that all containers of Gold Bond Flex Clips shall be stamped, marked or labeled, "Ap-

ACTION OF BOARD—Resolution amended in accordance with the report and recommendation of Committee on Test.

THE VOTE:

Commissioner Sleeper, Commissioner Fox and Commissioner Becker ..... 5

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: 668-54-SM—Amendment of resolution as to additional types of construction and accessories.

J. K. Hovind for the National Gypsum Company, Buffalo, New York requested by letter dated February 12, 1957 that the resolution adopted April 10, 1956 under Calendar Number 668-54-SM be amended to include additional types of construction and additional accessories. The application was reopened by a vote of the Board March 26, 1957.

USE: Gold Bond Holo Steel Studs, 2½", 3¼", 4" and 6" in depth, previously approved, are incombustible studs for attaching plaster and other bases for furring and hollow partitions. They may be used as studs to which gypsum lath, metal lath or gypsum backer board may be screwed, clipped or tied.

DESCRIPTION: The partitions, employing Gold Bond Holo Studs and accessories, previously approved, included one with resilient clips that held ¼" pencil rods to which diamond mesh metal lath was wire tied and gypsum plaster and another partition which included ⅜" gypsum backer board clipped to the Holo Studs with ⅜" gypsum wallboard, previously approved under Calendar Number 709-39-SM, laminated to the backer board surfaces.

The gypsum backer board is of the same composition as gypsum wallboard previously approved under Calendar Number 709-39-SM except that both the front and back paper surfaces are gray in color. It is supplied in thicknesses of ⅜" and ½"; widths of 24" and 48"; lengths as ordered, up to 12 ft., with square edges except ½" x 24" backer board is also supplied with V-joint edges.

Holo Stud accessories, used in the above and other fire resistive constructions are as follows:

Gold Bond HS-1 Field Clip—Identical to the wire "F" clip previously approved under Calendar Number 604-54-SM except for a slight modification in one bend which permits its use with Holo Studs for secure attachment of gypsum lath and backer board.

Gold Bond F-½ Field Clip—Identical to HS-1 Field Clip except that it is shaped so as to permit attachment of gypsum lath and backer board to pencil rods.

Gold Bond HS-2 Starter Clip—Galvanized sheet steel clip which fits over the flange of Holo Stud Track and into which the bottom edge of the first course of gypsum lath and backer board is placed thereby eliminating the necessity for wire-ties.

Gold Bond HS-3 Finishing Clip—A unique wire clip which permits rapid attachment of the top edge of the last course of gypsum lath and backer board at the ceiling.

Gold Bond RM-1 Resilient Clip—Sheet steel clip coated to prevent rust, which holds steel pencil rods approximately ¼" from the flanges of Holo Studs. Metal or gypsum lath is attached to the pencil rods and the clips resilient action greatly increases the sound transmission loss rating of the partition.

Gold Bond Stud Shoe and Starter Clip—Galvanized sheet steel clip used to hold Holo Studs in position within the floor track and in addition serves as a starter clip for the lower edge of the bottom course of gypsum lath and backer board.

Gold Bond Holo Stud Metal Base Clips—Galvanized sheet steel clips for 2½", 3" and 4" Gold Bond Lock-On Metal Base, previously approved, which are attached to the flanges of Holo Studs at the floor line. In addition, this clip rigidly holds the Holo Studs in position within the floor track alleviating the necessity for stud shoes. Clips are designed for use when gypsum lath (GLB clips), metal lath (MLB clips) or pencil rods and metal lath (MLBP clips) will be employed.

Gold Bond Holo Stud Column Clip—Galvanized sheet steel clips for 2½", 3¼", 4" and 6" Holo Studs. It is used to solidly space two Holo Studs 2" from each other, creating in essence, a column. The column clip is used primarily at door frames to stiffen and secure the double Holo Studs adjacent to the frame.

Gold Bond Snap-In Track—Sheet steel track for use with 2½", 3¼" and 4" Holo Studs which has slots on the bent-in flanges that receive Holo Studs and hold them securely without the need of stud shoes.

MINUTES

Gold Bond Drive-In Starter Clip—Galvanized sheet steel clips used with Snap-In Track primarily to hold the lower edge of the bottom course of gypsum lath and backer board. They are attached by driving the long leg between the track and the floor.

Gold Bond Holo Stud Shoe Clip—Galvanized wire clip which is used to secure stud shoes to 2½", 3¼", 4" and 6" Holo Studs at floor and ceiling. It eliminates the need for wire tying at these points and yet provides a secure attachment.

Gold Bond Pencil Rods—¼" diameter hot rolled round steel rods, lengths as ordered, for use with Holo Studs and other lathing operations.

INSPECTION AND TEST: Fire endurance tests were conducted at Ohio State University on the constructions hereinafter described, tested in accordance with the requirements of Sections C26-585.0, C26-591.0 and C26-592.0 Administrative Building Code and the test reports have been filed with and are part of the record. The accessories were inspected by the Committee on Test and were found to be as hereinafter described.

One partition consisted of 2½" Holo Studs spaced 16" o.c. to which Gold Bond RM-1 resilient clips were attached 16" o.c. on each flange. ¼" pencil rods, the height of the partition, were clipped to the RM-1 clips, 3.4 lb. per sq. yd. diamond mesh metal lath was wire tied to the pencil rods and the surface was plastered with ¾" sanded gypsum plaster, measured from back of lath, scratch coat 2 parts sand to 1 part gypsum, and brown coat—3 parts sand to 1 part gypsum by weight. The partition passed a 1 hour fire endurance test (failed at 1 hour and 20 minutes) and a hose-stream test.

The second partition consisted of 2½" Holo Studs spaced 24" o.c. to which ¾" Gold Bond Gypsum Backer Board, 24" wide was attached on each side of the studs with Gold Bond HS-1 Field Clips, ¾" Gold Bond Gypsum Wallboard, previously approved, was laminated to the face surfaces of the backer board with Gold Bond Joint Cement adhesive, previously approved. The point of failure of the fire endurance test was reached at slightly under 1 hour (53½ minutes).

RECOMMENDATION: On the basis of the inspection and tests and the data filed by the applicant, the Committee on Test recommends that the resolution adopted April 10, 1956 under Calendar Number 668-54-SM be amended to include the use of metal lath (attached directly to or to pencil rods which are attached to the studs) with the previously approved Gold Bond Holo Studs and ¾" total thickness sanded gypsum plaster under the provisions of Section C26-636.0 as having a 1 hour fire endurance rating, for use under Sections C26-239.0, C26-459.0 and C26-460.0 Administrative Building Code and to include the use of ¾" or ½" gypsum backer board to Holo Studs with ¾" or ½" gypsum wallboard adhered to the backer board for use under Section C26-667.0.5 as an incombustible sub-dividing partition for all classes of construction and to include the Holo Stud accessories herein described and that the Bills of Lading, shipping tickets and/or invoices may be stamped or labeled in lieu of stamping the building plans on condition that all other requirements of the resolution adopted April 10, 1956 under Calendar Number 668-54-SM are complied with.

593-59-SM

APPLICANT—The Lamson and Sessions Co., owner.

APPEARANCES—

For Applicant: William G. Waltermire.

MINUTES

ACTION OF BOARD—Material approved in accordance with the report and recommendation of Committee on Test.

THE VOTE—

Affirmative: Chairman Foley, Commissioner Sleeper, Commissioner Fox and Commissioner Becker ..... 4
Negative: Vice Chairman Kleinert ..... 1

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:
593-59-SM—William G. Waltermire for the Lamson & Sessions Co., Cleveland, Ohio, for approval of the Lamson & Sessions High Strength Bearing Bolt under the provisions of Sections C26-322, C26-368, C26-520 and C26-521 as amended by Local Laws 107, 108, 109 and 110 of 1955.

USE: The material is to be used for fastening structural steel.

DESCRIPTION: The bolts, nuts and washers are manufactured in conformity with the requirements of Specifications of Quenched and Tempered Steel, Bolts and Studs and Hardened Steel Washers (ASTM-A325). The bolt is basically a high tensile bolt with knurls added to produce a body bound fit and the heads are either button head or countersunk and are so designed as not to require washers under the heads. The bolts are identified by markings on the top of the head with three radial lines with the L and the numbers 325 placed under the L between the radial lines.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The applicant has submitted the results of a comprehensive range of tests showing compliance with the requirements of ASTM-A325. The complete report is on file with and is part of the record.

RECOMMENDATION: On the basis of the inspection and test and the date filed by the applicant, the Committee on Test recommends the approval of the material known as Lamson & Sessions High Strength Bearing Bolt for use in New York City under the provisions of Sections C26-322.0, C26-368.0, C26-520.0 and C26-521.0 Administrative Building Code as amended by Local Laws 107, 108, 109 and 110 of 1955, on condition that all bolts, studs, nuts and washers shall comply with the requirements of ASTM-A325 and further that all containers or cartons in which the material is to be marketed shall be tagged, stamped or labeled as follows: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Calendar Number 593-59-SM" and further that each bolt shall be identified with the marking herein described.

The Committee further recommends that when the High Strength Bolts are used in construction the following conditions shall apply:

Torque shall be sufficient to provide an average stress on the bolt at least fifteen percent in excess of the minimum required bolt tension specified in subdivision d4 of Section C26-520.0.

The parts to be bolted shall be brought tightly together by sufficient high-strength bolts used as fitting-up bolts.

Bolts shall then be installed in the remaining holds and their nuts shall be made finger tight, which shall mean tightened firmly by hand or spud wrench only, without the use of torque or impact wrenches.

After the nuts have been made finger tight, each nut shall be given one complete turn to tighten the bolt.

The fitting-up bolts shall be then loosened and the nuts thereon shall be retightened finger tight. Each nut shall then be given one complete turn.

Bolts shall not be forced into holes. Holes out of alignment shall be drilled or reamed.

Impact wrenches shall be regulated so as to produce one turn of the nut on the bolts in place, in approximately ten seconds.

The tightness of the bolts may be tested by turning the nuts one-sixteenth of a turn tighter with a torque wrench and measuring the resulting torque. The torques on the nuts shall not be less than shown in column 4 of the following table for the size of the bolt.

Sufficient bolts shall be checked to determine whether the required tightness has been obtained.

Nuts may be tightened by calibrated wrenches in place of giving each nut one turn. In such case, wrenches shall be calibrated not less than once each day by means of a calibrating and tension measuring device. The wrench shall be calibrated for the tension specified for the size of bolt in Column 2 of the table.

Where threads of bolts are injured, or the bolt is damaged in any way, the bolt shall be removed and replaced.

The installation of high-strength bolts shall be supervised by a licensed professional engineer or registered architect employed by the owner and acceptable to the Commissioner, to insure that high-strength bolts are installed according to the design and code requirements. Upon the completion of the installation of the high-strength bolts, the licensed engineer or registered architect shall file a statement with the department, in a manner determined by the Commissioner, that the installation of the bolts was in accordance with the requirements of the Administrative Code and the design.

The licensed professional engineer or registered architect shall not be employed by nor receive compensation from any of the contractors engaged in the construction or alteration of the building.

The licensed professional engineer or registered architect or his representative shall be present at all times when high-strength bolts are installed. He shall observe whether the bolts are being installed in compliance with the Administrative Code and this recommendation and wherever bolts do not conform to the code and he shall direct that such bolts be replaced or shall promptly report in writing such improperly installed bolts to the Borough Superintendent and the contractor.

Upon completion of the installation of the high-strength bolts, the licensed professional engineer or registered architect shall file a sworn statement in affidavit form, that the bolts were installed in accordance with the requirements of the Administrative Code and of this recommendation, unless the bolts were not so installed, in which case the Borough Superintendent shall be advised in writing of the manner in which the bolts were not properly installed.

Surface Combustion Corp., requested that the resolution adopted September 20, 1938 and amended at various times through May 20, 1958 under Calendar Number 683-38-SA—Vols. I, II, III & IV be reopened and amended so as to include the 67 Series Unit Heater.

USE: Gas fired space heaters.

DESCRIPTION: The requested Series 67 is basically the same as the UCS-55 Series, approved December 4, 1956 under Calendar Number 683-38-SA—Vol. IV. The new pilot burner is so designed as to operate on less than 1000 BTU per hour.

The 67 Series has been approved by the American Gas Association.

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: 272-57-SM—Donn Products, Inc., Westlake, Ohio, filed for approval of the D. S. Partition Stud under the provisions of Section C26-461.0 Administrative Building Code. USE: Studs to be used as a component part of a fireproof partition.

DESCRIPTION: The partition stud is a nailable stud manufactured from .022 cold rolled electro zinc coated steel. The studs are made in 2½", 3¼" and 3⅝" widths. When used as a component part of a partition, the lath, either metal, gypsum board or rock lath, is attached to the stud by means of nails; annular lath nails being used.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The applicant has submitted the test reports of a complete range of tests conducted by Ohio State University. The tests include fire and hose stream, impact, nail and staple holding power of lath to the studs and load tests on the stud when acting as a beam.

The partition was constructed in the customary manner. The studs were placed on 16" centers and were anchored to both the top and bottom runner channels. A stiffener channel is threaded through the slots in the web of the studs at mid height. The ⅜" perforated lath is then nailed to the studs and ½" gypsum plaster is then applied to the face of the lath. A similar application is then applied to the opposite face of the stud.

The partition, so constructed, successfully met the requirements of a 1½ hour fire resistive partition, a similar partition also successfully met the impact test. The complete reports of all tests are on file with and are part of the record.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the D. S. Partition Stud as herein described to be used in New York City as a component part of a one hour fire resistive partition, as having met the requirements of Sections C26-591 & C26-592.0, as permitted under Section C26-636.0 Administrative Code, provided that when the stud is used with metal lath and plaster the partition shall comply with Section C26-636.0.10 but when used with gypsum lath, the gypsum lath may be ⅜" perforated and plastered with ½" gypsum plaster, as tested, on condition that all bundles of the studs shall be tagged or labeled "Approved by the Board of Standards and

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: 167-59-SA—Victor Products Corp., Hagerstown, Maryland, owner, filed March 19, 1959 for approval of the Victor Automatic Pre-Mix Vending Machine, Models 312, 412, 422, 642, 643, 812, 813, 962 and 963, under the provisions of Article 18, Chapter 19, Administrative Code.

USE: To automatically dispense cold pre-mix beverages.

DESCRIPTION: The cabinet is made from 18 gauge sheet steel available in flat to floor, caster or legs, finished in baked enamel. The approximate dimensions are 66½ inch high, 23¾ inch wide, and 23¾ inch deep; the cabinet has an inner liner made from 20 gauge sheet steel, insulated with fiber glass insulation. The section provided for the compressor unit is located at the middle rear of the cabinet consisting of 16 gauge sheet steel plate 12 inch high, 28¾ inch wide, 8¾ inch deep, welded to the sides of the cabinet to form an enclosure having the rear part protected by grille and finned-coils of condenser.

Upon the insertion of a coin, a contact is made, releasing a paper cup to a platform after flavor selection is made. The pre-mix beverage is mixed and put into a 5 or 10 gallon product tank of stainless steel at a local bottling plant, so that the same beverage that is dispensed in a bottle is dispensed from the machine. The motive power for delivery of the beverage through the beverage circuit is furnished by a small bottle of CO<sub>2</sub>, controlled by a CO<sub>2</sub> regulator to maintain a constant pressure of 55 p.s.i. on the carbonated beverage in the product tank. Beverage is forced through the system into a cooling chamber, through a dispensing valve by driving pressure which is several pounds higher than the sustained pressure within the beverage tanks.

The refrigeration system incorporates components identical in most respects to the conventional household refrigerator. The difference being that the beverage is cooled within a refrigerated chamber rather than interior cabinet temperature. The refrigeration is provided with a hermetically sealed compressor.

The refrigeration system is composed as follows:

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:

580-59-SA—Leeds & Northrup Co., Philadelphia, Pa., filed an application for approval of their Vapocarb Hardening Furnace Equipment, #9650 Series, under the provisions of Sections C26-191.0 and C-19-11.0 Administrative Code.

USE: For hardening, carburizing and carbo-nitriding of steel.

DESCRIPTION: The Vapocarb Hardening Furnace Equipment consists of the Vapocarb Atmosphere Generator and the Vapocarb Furnace sized for small production or tool room use.

The atmosphere generator is an insulated electrically heated unit made with a sealed alloy chamber in which Vapocarb fluid, an organic liquid of a proprietary nature, is cracked at a temperature of 1500°F to generate a protective atmosphere. The generator temperature is automatically controlled from a thermocouple in the heating chamber by an indicating controller mounted on the temperature control panel. The Vaporcarb is supplied from a small storage tank, by means of a pump and is accurately metered into the generator where it vaporizes and cracks as it drops on an alloy target assembly. Provision is also made so that measured quantities of ammonia gas may enter the generator with the Vapocarb fluid and cracked to form a diluent or the ammonia gas may by-pass the generator and mix directly with the Vaporcarb atmosphere entering the furnace for carbonitriding steel.

The furnace is well insulated, electrically heated and has a sealed alloy retort chamber designed for a maximum operating temperature of 1850°F: Loading is from the top and when opened for charging, the lid on top swings to one side. When closed the lid seats in an ore filled sealing trough. The protective atmosphere from the generator is introduced through an inlet pipe in the bottom of the furnace. A thermocouple is mounted in the bottom of the work chamber for temperature measurement.

The steel to be treated rests on a perforated cast alloy hearth plate in the bottom of the chamber. Provision is made to burn off excess atmosphere at the rear of the furnace.

892-59-SA

APPLICANT—Schmidt Manufacturing Company, owner—gas-fired clothes dryer.

APPEARANCES—

For Applicant: William W. Pittendreigh.

ACTION OF BOARD—Appliance approved in accordance with the report and recommendation of Committee on Test.

THE VOTE—

Negative: ..... 0

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:

892-59-SA—Schmidt Manufacturing Company, New Bedford, Massachusetts, filed December 28, 1959 for approval of the Schmidt (Sahara) Clothes Dryer, Model DCM-330, Coin Metered or Time Controlled, for use in New York City under the provisions of Chapter 26, Article 12, Administrative Building Code.

USE: Gas-Heated Commercial Type Clothes Dryer (Water wash clothes.)

DESCRIPTION: The Schmidt Clothes Dryer is a four-load commercial coin-operated unit.

The dryer consists of a gas burner installed in a burner box, a tumbler basket installed above the burner box, a drive motor, a lint screen located directly in front of circulating blower. The components are assembled within an insulated steel casing finished with baked enamel. The machine is fully enclosed, top, sides, back and front. A circular window door opening to the tumbler compartment is provided in the front panel of the casing.

The tumbler basket diameter is 34 inches RPM by 24 inches deep that revolves at approximately 1725 RPM when in operation and blower is designed to move approximately 750 to 800 cubic feet of air per minute through the material being dried.

The burner assembly is a completely demountable unit consisting of the following: An automatic gas pressure regulating valve set at 3½ inches of water column pressure; An automatic 100% safety valve which will shut off all the gas in the event of pilot failure; A Minneapolis-Honeywell Modulating Temperature Control Valve; A solenoid gas shut-off valve.

Other controls are a timer control or coin meter, which starts and stops the drying cycle, therefore it turns "on" the gas (through a solenoid valve) along with the drive motor and remains "on" during the duration of the complete cycle at which time it shuts all operating units "off."

The door interlock switch shuts off the gas and the drive motor in case the door should be opened while the machine is in operation.

The by-metal of high limit temperature control switch is mounted at the top of the heater box of the dryer. Should excessive temperatures result at the top of the heater box, the by-metal will open and shut off the gas flame.

The temperature in the dryer is controlled through the means of the Minneapolis-Honeywell Madusnap Control Valve.

The dryer is equipped with a safety type door latch which releases with 10 to 15 lbs. pressure from the inside of the clothes dryer. There is also a large locked lint trap compartment accessible through the front lower panel of the clothes dryer.

All gas controls used carry the approval listing of the American Gas Association.

Each dryer has an 8 inch exhaust opening in the back panel of the casing and the exhaust side of the blower is recommended to be connected through the shortest possible duct system to the out-of-doors.

INSPECTION AND TEST: A typical Model DCM-330 was inspected and tested at 2236 1st Avenue, New York, N. Y. Present at the test was Ass't Architect T. W. Far-ricker. The unit functioned as designed.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends that the gas fired Schmidt (Sahara) Clothes Dryer Model DCM-330 be approved for voluntary use in New York City when installed in accordance with this report and the requirements of Article 12, Administrative Building Code, on condition that strict attention shall be given to the thorough cleaning of lint from the machines, both from the lint screen and compartment and from the thermobulb control bulb and all other locations as recommended by the service manual, a minimum of every 3 months. The Committee further recommends that all ports and orifices be maintained for the type of gas used and that each appliance shall bear a label, permanently affixed, reading "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Calendar Number 892-59-SA."

(Sgd.) WILLIAM A. NOLAN,
Director,
JOHN A. DARTS,

Fire Drill Rules, Adopted by the Board of Standards and Appeals, October 5, 1923

(593-23-SR)

DEFINITION OF "FIRE DRILL"

The method and practice of the systematic and orderly vacating of a building by its occupants in case of emergency, panic or fire in the least possible time—by the nearest safe means of exit—and the use of fire appliances which shall be provided for the extinguishing or retarding of fire and the safeguarding of human life.

Rule 1.

In all buildings as defined in Article 1, Section 10 of the Labor Law in which fire drills are required pursuant to Section 279 thereof and in any other building in which such drills are required by the Fire Commissioner pursuant to the power conferred in section 491 of the New York City Charter, it shall be the duty of the owners, lessees or tenants to conduct fire drills monthly and at such other times as the Fire Commissioner may direct.

For the purpose of conducting such fire drills the owner or tenants shall appoint from among their employees such responsible and dependable persons, male or female, who shall efficiently perform the duties of the various positions of the fire drill organization, as specified on the accompanying chart.

It shall be the duty of the owner or tenant to enter in the blank spaces provided for that purpose in said chart the names of persons so selected and post said chart and copies of the rules in a conspicuous place.

Rule 2. Duties of Foreman.

The Foreman or Person in Charge shall direct, enforce and have full charge of the "Fire Drill" in every factory on each floor. Each day before work is begun he shall see that extinguishers, fire hose, fire buckets, etc., are in readiness for use, exit doors are unlocked, aisles are free from obstruction, that stairways, halls, etc., are properly lighted, and shall remedy any dangerous condition found to exist. Immediately after work is commenced he shall check up the Fire Drill Organization list and note if the regularly assigned persons are present; if any are found to be absent, he shall assign other employees (if practicable) to perform their duties.

He shall immediately notify new employees of the existence of the Fire Drill Organization and give them the necessary instructions as to the duties they are to perform, etc.

He shall be familiar with the operation and location of the interior alarm signal box on his floor.

He shall listen for the test signal each morning at the appointed hour and in the event of the test signal not being heard he shall communicate with the superintendent or other person in charge of the building and advise him of the fact. The (Floor Captain's) Foreman's orders are final as to the carrying out of the fire drill on his particular floor.

Rule 3. Duties of Watchmen.

The WATCHMEN shall see that all doors and windows are closed so as to prevent the spread of fire. The WATCHMEN shall be the only persons permitted to remain on the floor during the progress of a fire drill and do so at their own risk. For ordinary purposes only one watchman and a substitute shall be designated. In special cases, however, extra watchmen may be assigned by consent in writing from Fire Commissioner.

Rule 4. Duties of Searchers.

The MALE AND FEMALE SEARCHERS shall search all toilets, dressing rooms and emergency rooms used and frequented by their sex and all other portions of the floor and order all persons, except those authorized to remain, to leave the premises. They are to take care of and assist all persons who may faint or be disabled.

SEARCHERS shall leave the floor immediately after the last squad leaves.

Rule 5. Duties of Street Alarm Box Runner.

The STREET-ALARM-BOX-RUNNER shall be familiar with the location of the nearest city fire alarm box and know how it is operated.

In ordinary practice fire drills the STREET-ALARM-BOX-RUNNER shall report to the Foreman for orders, and if his services are not required he shall promptly file out of the premises with the other occupants.

Only when a fire actually occurs on his floor, or when ordered to do so by the Foreman, shall the STREET-ALARM-BOX-RUNNER proceed to the street alarm box and send in the fire alarm.

Rule 6. Duties of Fire Brigade.

The fire brigade shall have full charge of the operation of all auxiliary fire fighting apparatus and shall endeavor to extinguish, or at least hold in check until the arrival of the Fire Department, any fire that may occur. When it is necessary for the fire brigade to respond to different floors in the building they shall not use the stairways or fire escapes while the occupants are escaping from the premises.

Rule 7. Duties of Exit Guards.

The EXIT GUARDS shall station themselves at all exit doors leading to fire escapes, stairways, and other means of escape immediately upon the sounding of the alarm. There shall be two guards for each exit, if practicable; one to stand in the hallway holding back the door and the other directly inside on the floor. They are to keep the exit doors open and direct the movements of the persons using these exits and prevent congestion.

EXIT GUARDS shall remain at their stations until all of the occupants of the building have passed their station. Then close their doors and pass out of the building. Upon signal for the occupants to return, EXIT GUARDS shall take their designated stations and remain there until all persons have returned to their respective floors.

Rule 8. Duties of Squad Monitors.

The SQUAD MONITORS, as soon as the alarm is sounded, shall see that the employees under their charge quickly form into line, two abreast, and numbering not more than thirty to each squad. They shall see that all aisles and passageways are cleared of obstructions.

Note: Chairs, stools, baskets, etc., should be pushed under or placed on top of work benches.

MONITORS shall proceed at the head of their respective squads to the exit assigned, and then march up or down the stairs or to other exits as directed by the EXIT GUARDS.

On reaching the sidewalk MONITORS shall keep their squads in order and lead them a reasonable distance from the building, so as not to cause congestion and interference with fire apparatus. When the proper signal is given they shall return to their respective floors at head of their squads.

MONITORS will at all times see that those under their charge conduct themselves in a respectable and orderly manner.

Rule 9. Holding of Drills.

FIRE DRILLS shall be held at least once each month at varied hours of the day, and all of the occupants shall participate therein simultaneously. Such drills shall conduct all occupants to a place of safety.

Where dual operation interior fire alarm systems are installed as permitted under Rule 10.1 of the interior fire alarm rules of the Board of Standards and Appeals, the fire drill conducted each month shall include all of the persons on the premises engaged at work for a factory, and drills shall be conducted at least twice, each year in which all of the persons on the premises shall participate simultaneously.

Rule 10. Duties of Owner.

It shall be the duty of the OWNER, LESSEE OR TENANT OF THE BUILDING or his authorized agent or their representatives to personally observe that the "Fire Drill" is held simultaneously on every floor of the building and the participation therein of every occupant of such building. Any FIRE DRILL in which all of the occupants do not participate shall not be considered as complying with the LAW, except as otherwise provided in these rules.

The person or persons representing the OWNERS, LESSEE OR TENANT, who supervises the FIRE DRILL at the building shall submit to an examination by the Division of Fire Prevention as to their experience and general fitness for such duties, and shall be so certified in writing by the FIRE COMMISSIONER.

It shall be the duty of the ENGINEER, SUPERINTENDENT or other PERSON IN CHARGE of a building having an interior fire alarm system to test such system daily immediately after the beginning of business, and to see that all apparatus operated by springs, requiring winding are rewound after each alarm and kept in normal condition for operation.

Rule 11. Duties of Engineer.

Whenever it is necessary to test the fire alarm system at any other time of the day, owing to repairs, etc., being made, the PERSON IN CHARGE OF BUILDING will first notify all Foremen of the several floors of the intended test and likewise notify them when the repairs, etc. are completed. This precaution is taken to prevent confusion and excitement, also misunderstanding of the alarm signals.

It shall also be the duty of the PERSON IN CHARGE OF BUILDING to sound the interior alarm system at irregular intervals, but not less than once each calendar month, for the purpose of holding practice fire drills. He shall keep on the premises a record of such drills, showing the date when held and the required time for all occupants to reach the street or a point of safety outside the building.

The PERSON IN CHARGE OF BUILDING must immediately acquaint new tenants of the existence of the "Fire Drill" Organization and its purport.

Rule 12. Registration.

The name and address of every person, corporation or co-partnership, that will, under professional service, carry on the trade, business or calling of establishing, maintaining or supervising the "Fire Drill" shall be registered in the Fire Department, which Department shall, upon evidence of fitness, grant a certificate to that effect.

APPEALS AS TO MULTIPLE DWELLINGS

The Legislature, under Chapter 333 of 1948, has clarified Section 60 of the Multiple Dwelling Law by describing the agency authorized to grant variances under this Section, so as clearly to mean in New York City—the Board of Standards and Appeals.

Chapter 508 of 1948 has also been adopted by the Legislature, amending the Multiple Dwelling Law to provide, under new Section 310, for a Board of Appeals. By description the Board of Appeals means in New York City—the Board of Standards and Appeals. Section 310 is further amended by Chapter 805 of 1959 and provides as follows as to appeals:

LAWS OF NEW YORK—By Authority Chapter 508 of 1948

§ 310. Board of appeals. 1. As used in this section "board" shall mean the agency of a city constituted as a board and authorized by law both to grant variances of the zoning resolution and to make rules supplemental to laws regulating construction, maintenance, use and area of buildings.

2. Where the compliance with the strict letter of this chapter causes any practical difficulties or any unnecessary hardships the board shall have the power, on satisfactory proof at a public hearing, provided the spirit and intent of this chapter are maintained and public health, safety and welfare preserved, and substantial justice done, to vary or modify any provision or requirement of this chapter, or any rule, regulation, supplementary regulation, ruling or order of the department with respect to the provisions of this chapter, as follows:

b. For multiple dwellings and buildings erected or to be erected after July first, nineteen hundred forty-eight, and such dwellings thereafter altered or to be altered, provisions relating to:

- (1) Required open spaces; or
- (2) Minimum dimensions of yards or courts.

Variations or modifications may be granted pursuant to this paragraph b only on condition that open areas for light and air are provided which are at least equivalent in area to those required by the applicable provisions of this chapter.

3. An application for such a variance or modification may be made by any person aggrieved or by the head of any public agency, within such time and under such procedure, conditions and rules as may be prescribed by the board. The board shall fix a reasonable time for the hearing of an application and shall require that due notice be given of the time and place of such hearing to the applicant and to the department.
